LIGNITE CASE OF RAILROADS
IS ENDED HERE

Light Traffic in North and South Dakota Means Higher Operating Costs, Claim

COMPARISONS GIVEN

Railroad Case Based on Claim That Coal Rates in Other Fields Are Higher

Representatives of railroads supporting the plea for increased freight rates on lignite coal from North Dakota mines draw their case to a close today before W. H. Wagner, examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the North Dakota Railroad Commission, by presenting elaborate comparisons of coal rates and density of traffic through the north-west.

The railroads' presentation of their case came to a close at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and it was continued until sometime after April 1, when the protesters will present their arguments for retention of the present lignite rates.

Examiner Wagner and Chairman Milholland of the state commission asked and received assurance from the railroad representatives that the rates, which had been suspended until April 4, would not be put in effect pending completion of the case. B. F. Moffat, general freight agent of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad, the first witness today for the railroads, went immediately into the question of the relative cost of moving railroad tonnage in territories into which lignite is shipped and other portions of the system.

He said that 72 percent of population in Minnesota was in the south-eastern part of the state, to which coal moves on routes comparable with the proposed lignite increases, while much lignite moves into the north-western part of the state not so heavily populated. Endeavoring to show that it costs the railroads more proportionately to move freight in territories of small population, he said that the Minneapolis and St. Louis experienced a deficit on its lines in South Dakota in 1922, because of the relatively light freight traffic. The road derived 2.3 percent of its revenue from its South Dakota lines, he said, which was less than it should in proportion to the number of miles of rails there.

Comparing Rates
He also went into a comparison of rates from coal fields other than the lignite fields. The rate on coal from Roundup, Montana, to Aberdeen, S. D., is $3.96 per ton, he said, while the present lignite rate for the same distance is $3.16 and the proposed lignite rate is $4.31 per ton.

The coal rate from Roundup to Watertown, he said, is $4.44 per ton, the present rate on lignite for the same distance is $3.28 per ton and the proposed lignite rate $4.58 per ton.

From Dietz, Wyoming, to Ardmore, S. D., both points on the Burlington route, the coal rate is $2.77 per ton and the proposed lignite rate for the same distance is $2.61, he said.

Mr. Moffat said he introduced figures to show that Iowa intrastate rates on coal were, as a whole, higher than the proposed lignite rates.

Light Traffic Factor
W. Y. Wildman of Chicago, commercial assistant for the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, also went into the question of the cost of moving traffic in South Dakota and North Dakota, to show that because of the relatively light traffic as compared to other states on the system, the railroads' operating expense in South Dakota and North Dakota is greater.

Because of the light traffic density in South Dakota, he said, in a majority of cases the railroad could not obtain train loads equal to the carrying capacity of its engines. His testimony dealt chiefly with South Dakota, because the Northwestern has but 14 miles of railroad in North Dakota.

"CABINET WOMEN NOT MY KIND," SAYS MRS. JOHNSON. "THE FARM FOR ME"

MRS. MAGNUS JOHNSON (LEFT), WIFE OF THE MINNESOTA SENATOR, AT WORK IN HER WASHINGTON HOME. THE JOHNSONS PAY $7 A MONTH FOR THEIR CONVENIENTLY LOCATED HOME. SENATOR AND MRS. JOHNSON AND TWO OF THEIR CHILDREN (LEFT TO RIGHT) WALKING ALONG A WASHINGTON STREET.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Feb. 27.—The Magnus Johnsons' hot (?) water pipes were frozen.

The Johnsons had been out all afternoon—the senator at the capitol, Mrs. Johnson visiting the suburban school her children attend. In their absence the fire went out.

The senator was considerably heated by the mishap, but the house was not. Mrs. Johnson took it philosophically, as one of the inevitable discomforts of city life. "Modern conveniences!" she said scornfully.

Warm at 30 Below
"On the farm," she added, "we never had such troubles. We burn wood there—in a stove. I never used coal before."

"This climate isn't so bad, but we can't keep warm. In Minnesota we could, with a wood fire, in 20 and 30-degree-below-zero weather."

Sensor Johnson answered the door in person. He looked rather doubtful at the request for an interview with his wife.

"Mrs. Johnson isn't a politician," he said. "She's been on the school board, but she's a farm woman. She doesn't understand politics. And the newspapers have said some things about us that were all wrong."

"Now, that milking contest! You know, the one with Secretary Wallace. One of the worst mistakes I ever saw—got into that. The papers said those cows were Jerseys. They were NOT." The senator's voice rose in anger. "They were Holsteins."

There's a considerable difference between a Jersey and a Holstein, supplemented Mrs. Johnson.

Sensor Johnson is hard to interview. He has no much to say it's difficult to get a question in, edge-wise. Mrs. Johnson is harder. She answers just "yes" and "no."

"You like Washington, Mrs. Johnson?"

"It's lonely."

"What, in comparison with a farm?"

"She does the washing."

"You've no time to be lonely on a farm. Too much work to do."

"But you find it interesting here?"

"In some ways. I have my housework to interest me. I do it all, you know. And the washing. I do that, too, just as I did in Minnesota."

"I shall GO BACK TO Minnesota soon," Mrs. Johnson added positively. "I want to be there. In the spring the farm will need me. In the winter it doesn't matter much. I'll go back in April."

"Of course, there's plenty of official society."

"Oh, yes, I've had lots of calls—the cabinet ladies, everybody. But they're not my kind of people."

"Mr. Johnson's engagements keep him away a great deal, too—days and evenings."

"Yes, it's lonely."

"You're not interested in women's political activities?"

"I've never had time to be. I've always been too busy on the farm. We've never kept any help, you see—on the farm or here, either."

"Good help's hard to get now."

This just to get Mrs. Johnson to say something.

"I don't know. I've never tried."

"Not like the days when $3 a week was the standard price for a maid—odd-work." Still struggling to make conversation.

"It only cost $2.50 when I worked out," said Mrs. Johnson.

FARMER-LABOR
CALL IS MADE

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—Formal call for a state convention of the Farmer-Labor party with 378 qualified delegates to meet March 11 at St. Cloud was issued today by F. A. Pike, chairman of the party's state central committee.

PURGE CABINET
REED DEMANDS

U. S. Senator Says Fall Not Only One Guilty

Hannibal, Mo., Feb. 27.—United States Senator James A. Reed, discussing the oil disclosures at a mass meeting here last night, asserted that "if the cabinet is not purged soon, it will be time for Mr. Coolidge to resign."

The speech was in furtherance of Mr. Reed's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Purge Washington first and the government of every form of corruption," the senator emphasized.

"Vast sums of money have been paid and in my judgment bribery was not confined to Albert Fall."

Sensor Reed made a plea for alleviation of problems confronting the farmer, and emphasizing that he was in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination to win. He denounced as "unconscionably false" reports that his candidacy was "not bonafide," and that it was in the interest of any combination.

MORE AWARDS ON LUSITANIA

Total Against Germany Increased Over a Million

Washington, Feb. 27.—Twenty-six awards totaling $138,322.40, of which 12 aggregating $17,125.25 were in the Lusitania group, were announced by the German-American mixed claims commission in favor of American claimants, against Germany.

Four claims were dismissed by the commission and the remainder of the awards were for amounts ranging from $200 to $2,500.

The awards in the Lusitania group were based on property losses sustained by Americans individually, or by their estates and were decided in accordance with the principles laid down in an opinion on the Lusitania claims announced last November 1. All the awards in the property cases carry interest of 5 percent a year dating from May 7, 1915, when the Lusitania was sunk, to the date of payment by Germany.

The largest award outside of the Lusitania claims was for $104,000 with interest from April 1, 1918, to Marshall Field & Company, Chicago.

GREENE STILL CRITICAL

27 CONVICTS
IN ESCAPE

Six Captured and Others Being Hunted Down

Houston, Tex., Feb. 27.—Six of the 27 Mexican convicts who escaped last night from the state prison farm at Bluebridge, 18 miles from here, are again in custody this morning and posses of state, city and county officers are searching for the others. Four are under arrest and two are in custody at Bluebridge. Officers are confident of rounding up the remainder during the day.

KILLS MATRON AND ESCAPES

Recaptured, Gladys Ellis Confesses to Crime

Indianapolis, Feb. 27.—Miss Gladys Ellis, alias Rodgers, 32, confessed last night she killed Miss Louise Richards, 70, teacher and matron at the Indiana women's prison here as a preliminary to her escape from the institution the night previous.

Miss Ellis, who is said to have a long criminal record, was captured by detectives as she alighted from a taxicab in the downtown section, where she had an appointment with a man friend.

The young woman in her statement to police said she had planned her escape from the prison, where she was serving a long sentence for forgery several days ago. She said she succeeded in picking the lock in her cell and in the same manner had obtained access to the matron's room.

She struck the matron across the head with the keys and after taking the matron's money and some clothing, unlocked the prison doors and made her escape.

A highway route south through Richardson, Stark county, has been designated by the state highway commission as a part of the Sakakawea trail, which starts at the South Dakota line and runs through Haynes, Richardson, Mott, Halliday, Ellwood and to the Canadian boundary. The exact course of the trail has not been completed.

RAIL PROBLEMS
TOLD ROTARY
BY WOODWORTH

Speaks Frankly Upon Issues Involved in Rate Making in North Dakota

BRIGHTER TIMES AHEAD

Many Changes in Attitude Toward Carriers in Last Few Years Pointed Out

North Dakota is more nearly ready to stage a business come back than any section on the Northern Pacific system, J. G. Woodward, vice president of the Northern Pacific, told the Bismarck Rotarians at their regular weekly luncheon at the McKenzie hotel.

"You had little inflation here," he said, "and the process of deflation has practically been completed. In fact you are in fine shape to enjoy what appears to be better times ahead. We can see the light breaking through the clouds. I learn from the Immigration Department that they have considerable inquiries about North Dakota which should mean in time a more active movement of settlers to this state."

Mr. Woodward spoke frankly upon the matters of rate making explaining how under governmental supervision rate making had been reduced to a mathematical basis and how the railroads had had this matter largely taken out of their hands. He contrasted early day systems of rate making to what obtains now, clearly showing that the railroads clearly the days of government control of rates had been able to do much in putting into effect rates that would allow new industries to reach out and expand their markets.

He said both the press and the public were gradually seeing some of the railroad problems in their true significance. He declared that the railroads must get an adequate return for their service or else let Uncle Sam run them.

Early Connection

Mr. Woodward referred to his connection with the early settlement of the territory. He was Agent at De Smet, D. T. from 1880 to 1884. He described similar experiences in Oregon and Washington and contrasted railroad conditions and methods of that period with those of today. It was the period of extensive railroad building in the West. The hope of large profits made it easy to get money for such purposes. There was no law providing that any return in excess of six percent would wholly or partially revert to the community. In the railroad business the office boy is extinct. They are now called Junior Clerks and get the minimum wage under the clerks schedule, $60.00 per month nor can they be promoted out of their turn under the seniority rules adopted in the period of Government control.

Difference in Policy

Mr. Woodward also showed the difference in the policy and method of making railroad rates in the two periods and suggested the question as to whether it would be possible under present conditions to induce people to build and lose their money in the building of railroads as they did in past years and whether the railroads newly built in an undeveloped country could under the present conditions be administered in a way which would promote the growth of the country and make them successful. He did not suggest that it would be possible to greatly change present conditions but he did say that a continuation of railroad operations under the present plan would depend upon a better understanding of all these things by the people who make and administer the laws and this would be impossible without a better understanding on the part of the individual citizens and voters, the alternative being complete Government control and operation.

Tendency of Regulation

As showing how the tendency of rate regulation is always in the direction of uniform rates on some mathematical basis he described the history of cement rates and referred also to the present difficulties in connection with coal rates, suggesting that the never-ending dispute between the coal producers and dealers would make it necessary to finally have a distance measure of rates on coal just as we now have distance measure on cement.

Complaints by putting all shippers on the same basis. He closed his suggestion that the farmers of North Dakota are very much interested in the lignite coal rates and stated that 90 percent of the North Dakota lignite is hauled by the Northern Pacific and not go out of the state and that (Continued on page 8)

THIRD PERSON IN JAMESTOWN
MURDER CASE NOW IS SOUGHT

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 27.—After the bodies of Winfred Stookey and James Keown were exhumed, a local doctor compared the dentist's chart of the former's teeth with that of an army chart, and said they were the same. The father of Keown identified a coat worn by the dead man as that worn by his son.

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 27.—With the two men slain here last August identified by their fathers as Winfred Stookey and James Keown of Gilman, Missouri, there is added a mystery to the case.

The two men, according to their fathers, left Kansas by auto with a third man and the party of three had been traced through some of the states to North Dakota. The third man signed his name as "Jim Tate," at Red Cloud, Nebraska, and the fathers have the number and description of the car.

At the time of the finding of the bodies here there was strong sentiment that the murders had been committed by someone who came with a car. Joe Berger, now serving time in the penitentiary for murder of the two men to which he confessed, was not the man who came to Jamestown with Stookey and Keown.

The two slain men were 28 and 29 years old, respectively, and both ex-service men. Proof of their service in the World War has been given to Jamestown Legion officials in discharge papers of Keown and an army dentist's chart of the teeth of Stookey. The bodies of the two men will be exhumed and the teeth compared to the dentist's charts, and if the identification is completed, will be taken back to Gilman City.

M'NARY BILL IS APPROVED

Senate Agricultural Committee Indorses Measure

Washington, Feb. 27.—The McNary-Haugen bill proposing creation of a $100,000,000 farm produce export corporation, will be reported to the senate Thursday as the first of the several major farm relief measures under preparation in the present session of congress.

The senate agricultural committee, by a vote of 10 to 2, has authorized Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, to report the bill with its indorsement after several weeks of hearings in which delegations from all the wheat producing states appeared for and against the proposed legislation.

Drawn by Senator McNary in cooperation with Chairman Haugen, Republican, Iowa, of the house agricultural committee, the bill was indorsed by the Northwestern Cooperative Wheat Market Association and other prominent farm organizations. It proposes that the corporation set up under its provisions be empowered to market abroad farm products, particularly wheat and livestock, and to charge back to the grower the difference between the foreign price and a "ratio price" to be established from time to time.

YOUNG MATRON OF CITY DIES

Mrs. Angelo Holta Succumbs After Short Illness

Mrs. Freida Nadler Holta, aged 24 years, wife of Angelo Holta, died unexpectedly shortly before midnight last night at their apartment in Person court after a short illness. Mrs. Holta had suffered a light stroke of influenza which led to hemorrhages which caused her death, physicians said.

Mrs. Holta, who is one of the best known young matrons of the city and enjoyed a wide circle of close friends, and Mr. Holta were married last September 16, an announcement of their marriage being made at Christmas time. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of this city and for some years prior to her marriage had been associated with the Rawlings and Towne clinic.

Born in Washington county, Illinois, March 15, 1899, Mrs. Holta came to North Dakota with her family and resided at New Salem for several years. Her husband, father, mother, two sisters, Alms and Irene, and brother, Ray, survive.

Funeral services had not been definitely arranged this afternoon, pending receipt of word from her mother, Mrs. Minnie Nadler, who is in Seattle, Washington.

CROWD BREAKS UP KU KLUX KLAN
MEETING, SMASHES HOTEL WINDOWS

Waukegan, Wis., Feb. 27.—(By the A. P.)—While about 3,000 persons stormed outside the Commercial hotel last night an attempted Ku Klux Klan meeting was broken up in the hotel. The hotel is in the heart of the business district. Windows were smashed, doors broken in and the cafeteria in which the meeting was held was wrecked.

The meeting was the result of a two-week effort to organize a Klan unit and the principal speakers were said to be of national prominence. Time set for the meeting was 8 o'clock. At that time the cafeteria was jammed to the doors. When the Klan speaker rose and announced that a prayer would open the meeting he was greeted with catcalls and jeers. Before he was able to make himself heard a man jumped on the table and waved an automatic pistol. The yelling apparently was a signal to persons waiting outside, for about 12 pushed their way through the broken door of the meeting and with drawn revolvers announced "the meeting is off." At this juncture the lights went out, the wires having been cut, and the three-story hotel was thrown into darkness. A concerted rush was made toward the Klan speaker and organizers. Sympathizers assisted them and in the jumble succeeded in getting them out a side door and to the second floor. There they remained about two hours until they were rescued by men called from Milwaukee and headed by William Wiseman, grand cege by the Klan in Wisconsin.

Senate Oil Committee Listens to McLean Interchange With Employee

Washington, Feb. 27.—An offer by Attorney-General Daugherty to retire to private life when the senate complete investigation of his official acts is believed in some administration circles to be imminent.

Under the plan he would step out of the cabinet regardless of the outcome of the senate inquiry and would announce that intention to the country in advance.

A statement from him is expected before the day is over. There is a belief in some quarters that it may end the bitter controversy of which he has become the center.

There still are some of President Coolidge's advisers, however, who believe that a promise to resign at a future date will not satisfy the Attorney-General criticisms in the senate.

Whether it would be entirely satisfactory to Mr. Coolidge himself remains undisclosed. He conferred for an hour again today with the Attorney-General but made no statement.

READ McLEAN WIRES

Washington, Feb. 27.—Telegrams sent to Edward B. McLean, A. B. Hall and others at Palm Beach, Florida, and relevant to the oil inquiry, were read into the record today of the oil committee.

The first, from John Major at Washington to McLean at Palm Beach, suggested a leased wire from the Washington Post to McLean's cottage in Florida so that the publisher would have "quick access to the White House." The message said also that C. Bascom Slomp, secretary to the President, would be in Florida shortly. Another message from Major to McLean said that Major had "a talk with Mithers at the White House. Major is an employee of McLean here. E. W. Smithers is chief telegrapher at the White House."

In another message Major told McLean he had talked with Slomp "with J. W. Zeveloff, Palmer's law partner who said the matter would be attended to in a manner satisfactory to you."

Another message said Fred Starek, a director of the War Finance Corporation, was anxious to get in touch with McLean on an important matter.

Palmer and Zeveloff told me tonight that under no circumstances should you send a message to the committee," said another message from Major. "They said, 'my message added, that after the man at Wardman Park (Fall's hotel) testified that the committee wanted you they could take care of you.'"

A message from the White House signed "E. W. Sarling" and addressed to McLean said that Sarling had "wired Willis at Hopkinsville, Ky." (Sarling is of the White House secret service staff.)

Major reported to McLean that he had delivered a message "to McAdoo and Palmer as per your instructions (in other messages there are references to Francis McAdoo of New York, believed by committee men to be the son of W. G. McAdoo). Under date of January 22, 1924, Major wired McLean that A. Mitchell Palmer (former Attorney-General and counsel for McLean) had gained the impression from Senator Walsh that McLean would not be called before the committee. This message added that "other people are working on Walsh."

"Just left the secretary at Wardman Park," Major wired to McLean. "He will go to Palm Beach. He declared you would not be called and that the entire letter would be closed after a Sinclair testified."

Major said he was arranging for Fall's trip to Palm Beach but had doubts as to whether the secretary would be a guest of McLean.

The committee adjourned until 11 a. m. tomorrow before all the messages had been read. Just before adjournment Chairman Lenroot said that later messages established "the 'McAdoo' referred to Francis McAdoo of New York."

RECEIVED WIRE

Washington, Feb. 27.—Senator Smead of Utah, former chairman of the oil committee, disclosed today that he was advised in advance that E. L. Dohney was coming to Washington to testify about his $100,000 loan to A. B. Fall. The Utah senator said he had received the information from W. G. McAdoo, former Attorney-General, who was at New Orleans at the time with Fall. (The senator denied rumors that he had been in telegraphic communication with Fall since the former secretary announced in December that he had received the $100,000 loan from Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

Railroad Case Based on Claim That Coal Rates in Other Fields Are Higher

Representatives of railroads supporting the plea for increased freight rates on lignite coal from North Dakota mines drew their case to a close today before W. H. The railroads' presentation of their case came to a close at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and it was continued until sometime after April 1, when the protestants will present their arguments for retention of the present lignite rates.

Examiner Wagner and Chairman Milholland of the state commission asked and received assurance from the railroad representatives that the rates, which had been suspended until April 4, would not be put in effect pending completion of the case.

The road derived 33 percent of its revenue from its South Dakota lines, he said, which was less than it should in proportion to the number of miles of rails there.

Comparisons Made
He also went into a comparison of rates from coal fields other than the lignite fields. The rate on coal from Roundup, Montana, to Aberdeen, S. D., is $3.96 per ton, he said, while the present lignite rate for the same distance is $3.16 and the proposed lignite rate is $4.31 per ton.

Light Traffic Faster
W. Y. Wildman of Chicago, commerce assistant for the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, also went into the question of the cost of moving traffic in South Dakota and North Dakota, to show that because of the relatively light traffic as compared to other states on the system, the railroads' operating expense in South Dakota and North Dakota is greater. Because of the light traffic density in South Dakota, he said, in a majority of cases the railroad could not obtain "train loads equal to the full carrying capacity of the engines."

Operators Case Later
The lignite operators and representatives of the states of North and South Dakota and Minnesota have during the two and a half days hearing here introduced no evidence in the case, the evidence being confined to the carriers' presentation. When it is resumed after adjournment, the protestants will endeavor to show that the present lignite rates are justifiable, and that the proposed rates would mean simply a destruction of the lignite industry which would be harmful to the operators, the railroads and the public alike.

BRIGHTER TIMES AHEAD

Many Changes in Attitude Toward Carriers in Last Few Years Pointed Out

North Dakota is more nearly ready to stage a business case back than any section on the Northern Pacific system, J. G. Woodworth, vice president of the Northern Pacific, told the Bismarck Rotarians at their regular weekly luncheon at the McKenzie hotel.

"You had little inflation here," he said, "and the process of deflation has practically been completed. In fact you are in fine shape to enjoy what appears to be better times ahead. We can see the light breaking through the clouds. I learn from the Immigration Department that there have considerable inquiries about North Dakota which should mean in time a more active movement of settlers to this state."

Mr. Woodworth spoke frankly upon the matters of rate making explaining how under governmental supervision rate making had been reduced to a mathematical basis and how the railroads had had this matter largely taken out of their hands. He contrasted early day systems of rate making to what obtains now, clearly showing that the railroads before the days of government control of rates had been able to do much in putting into effect rates that would allow new industries to reach out and expand their markets.

He said both the press and the public were gradually seeing some of the railroad problems in their true significance. He declared that the railroads must get an adequate return for their service or else let Uncle Sam run them.

Early Connection
Mr. Woodworth referred to his connection with the early settlement of the territory. He was Agent at De Smet, D. T. from 1880 to 1884. He described similar experiences in Oregon and Washington and contrasted railroad conditions and methods of that period with those of today. It was the period of extensive railroad building in the West. The hope of large profits made it easy to get money for such purposes. There was no law providing that any return in excess of six percent would wholly or partially revert to the Government and rates were not fixed by railroad commission. The railroads had no difficulty in getting good men in all classes of employment because every man had a chance and hoped to be a superintendent, general manager or a president. When Mr. Woodworth went to work as office boy in the general freight office of the Northwestern Railroad in Chicago there were four other applicants for the job which paid $15.00 per month. They were the sons of business men who sought the place for their boys as they now seek to connect with banks, trust companies and large business corporations.

In the railroad business the office boy is extinct. They are now called Junior Clerks and get the minimum wage under the clerks schedule, $60.00 per month nor can they be promoted out of their turn under the seniority rules adopted in the period of Government control.

Difference in Policy
Mr. Woodworth also showed the difference in the policy and method of making railroad rates in the two periods and suggested the question as to whether it would be possible under present conditions to induce people to invest and lose their money in the building of railroads as they did in past years and where their railroads newly built in an undeveloped country could under the present conditions be administered in a way which would promote the growth of the country and make them successful. He did not suggest that it would be possible to greatly change present conditions but he did say that a continuation of railroad operations under the present plan would depend upon a better understanding of all these things by the people who make and administer the laws and this would be impossible without a better understanding on the part of the individual citizens and voters, the alternative being complete Government control and operation.

Tendency of Regulation
As showing how the tendency of rate regulation is always in the direction of uniform rates on some mathematical basis he described the history of cement rates and referred also to the present difficulties in connection with coal rates, suggesting that the never-ending dispute between the coal producers and dealers would make it necessary to finally have a distance measure of rates on coal just as we now have distance rates on cement, thus stopping the complaints by putting all shippers on the same basis. He ridiculed the suggestion that the farmers of North Dakota are very much interested in the lignite coal rates and stated that 90 percent of the North Dakota lignite hauled by the Northern Pacific did not go out of the state and that (Continued on page 8)

THIRD PERSON IN JAMESTOWN MURDER CASE NOW IS SOUGHT

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 27.—After the bodies of Winfred Stookey and James Keown were exhumed, a local doctor compared the dentist's chart of the former's teeth with that of an army chart, and said they were the same. The father of Keown identified a coat worn by the dead man as that worn by his son.

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 27.—With the two men slain here last August identified by their fathers as Winfred Stookey and James Keown of Gilman, Missouri, there is added a mystery to the case.

The two men, according to their fathers, left Kansas by auto with a third man and the party of three had been traced through some of the states to North Dakota. The third man signed his name as "Jim Tate."

M'NARY BILL IS APPROVED

Senate Agricultural Committee Indorses Measure

Washington, Feb. 27.—The McNary-Haugen bill proposing creation of a $100,000,000 farm produce export corporation, will be reported to the senate Thursday as the first of the several major farm relief measures under preparation in the present session of congress.

The senate agricultural committee, by a vote of 10 to 2, has authorized Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, to report the bill with its indorsement after several weeks of hearings in which delegations from all the wheat producing states appeared for and against the proposed legislation.

Drawn by Senator McNary in co-operation with Chairman Haugen, Republican, Iowa, of the house agricultural committee, the bill was indorsed by the Northwestern Cooperative Wheat Market Association and other prominent farm organizations.

It proposes that the corporation set up under its provisions be empowered to market abroad farm products, particularly wheat and livestock, and to charge back to the grower the difference between the foreign price and a "ratio price" to be established from time to time.

YOUNG MATRON OF CITY DIES

Mrs. Angelo Holta Succumbs After Short Illness

Mrs. Freida Nadler Holta, aged 24 years, wife of Angelo Holta, died unexpectedly shortly before midnight last night at their apartment in Person court after a short illness. Mrs. Holta had suffered a light stroke of influenza which led to hemorrhages which caused her death, physicians said.

Mrs. Holta, who was one of the best known young matrons of the city and enjoyed a wide circle of close friends, and Mr. Holta were married last September 16, announcement of their marriage being made at Christmas time. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of this city and for some years prior to her marriage had been associated with the Rawlings and Towne clinic.

Born in Washington county, Illinois, March 15, 1899, Mrs. Holta came to North Dakota with her family and resided at New Salem for several years. Her husband, father, mother, two sisters, Alma and Irene, and brother, Ray, survive.

Funeral services had not been definitely arranged this afternoon. Pending receipt of word from her mother, Mrs. Minnie Nadler, who is in Seattle, Washington.

SEC. HUGHES SPEAKS

Says That Harding "Belonged to Aristocracy of the Plain People"

Washington, Feb. 27.—Warren G. Harding "belonged to the aristocracy of the plain people of this country," Secretary Hughes said today in delivering the eulogy of the late president at the joint session of the senate and house which formed the official memorial exercises for President Harding.

"He was equipped for his task by inheritance and training which were completely and typically American," Mr. Hughes said. "He was neither helper nor hampered by exceptional environment. He suffered neither from poverty nor riches. His endowment was a keen mind and a strong body. 'Alert to opportunity, self-reliance and facile and warm-hearted he made his own way, owing his success to his tireless persistence and his unquenchable ardor in living things.'"

Mr. Hughes said it was fitting that official tribute should be paid to the memory of a President but that the significance of the gathering today was far deeper than that.

"It is a tribute inspired by love of country as laying aside the differences and controversies which seem trivial in the face of man's adventures and God's Providence, we stand united in indissoluble bonds of common patriotism knowing well that ungrateful republics cannot endure," he said.

HOUSE, SENATE UNITE

Washington, Feb. 27.—The senate and house today united to pay their formal tribute to the memory of President Harding.

Laying aside all pending legislation and submerging their various animosities the members of both chambers met jointly in the presence of President Coolidge, his cabinet, the supreme court justices, state governors and foreign diplomatic representatives to hear an eulogy of his late chief by Secretary Hughes.

A section of the gallery was reserved for Mrs. Harding and a group of her friends.

Senate Oil Committee Listens to McLean Interchange With Employee

Washington, Feb. 27.—An offer by Attorney-General Daugherty to retire to private life when the senate complete investigation of his official acts is believed in some administration circles to be imminent.

Under the plan he would step out of the cabinet regardless of the outcome of the senate inquiry and would announce that intention to the country in advance.

A statement from him is expected before the day is over. There is a belief in some quarters that it may end the bitter controversy of which he has become the center.

There still are some of President Coolidge's advisers, however, who believe that a promise to resign at a future date will not satisfy the Attorney-General criticisms in the senate.

Whether it would be entirely satisfactory to Mr. Coolidge himself remains undisclosed. He conferred for an hour again today with the Attorney-General but made no statement.

READ McLEAN WIRE

Washington, Feb. 27.—Telegrams sent to Edward B. McLean, A. B. Fall and others at Palm Beach, Florida, and relevant to the oil inquiry, were read into the record today of the oil committee.

The first, from John Major at Washington to McLean at Palm Beach, suggested a leased wire to the Washington Post to McLean's cottage in Florida so that the publisher would have "quick access to the White House." The message also said that C. Broom Slomp, secretary to the President, was in Florida shortly. Another message from Major to McLean said that Major had "a talk with Mithers at the White House." Major is an employee of McLean here. E. W. Smith is chief telegrapher at the White House.

In another message Major told McLean he had talked with Slomp "with J. W. Zevely, Palmer's law partner who said the matter would be attended to in a manner satisfactory to you."

Another message said Fred Starek, a director of the War Finance Corporation, was anxious to get in touch with McLean on an important matter.

Palmer and Zevely told me tonight that under no circumstances should you send a message to the committee," said another message from Major. "They said, the message added, that after the night at Wardman Park (Fall's hotel) testified that the committee wanted you they could take care of you."

A message from the White House signed "E. W. Sarling" and addressed to McLean said that Sarling had "wired Willis at Hopkinsville, Ky." (Sarling is of the White House secret service staff.)

Major reported to McLean that he had delivered a message "to McAdoo and Palmer as per your instructions (in other messages there are references to Francis McAdoo of New York, believed by committee men to be the son of W. G. McAdoo). Under date of January 22, 1924, Major wired McLean that A. Mitchell Palmer (former Attorney-General and counsel for McLean) had gained the impression from Senator Walsh that McLean would not be called before the committee. This message added that 'other people are working on Walsh.'

"Just left the secretary at Wardman Park," Major wired to McLean. "He will go to Palm Beach. He declared you would not be called and that the entire letter would be closed after Sinclair testifies."

Major said he was arranging for Fall's trip to Palm Beach but had doubts as to whether the secretary would be a guest of McLean.

The committee adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow before all the messages had been read. Just before adjournment Chairman Lenroot said that later messages established that the "McAdoo" referred to Francis McAdoo of New York.

RECEIVED WIRE
Washington, Feb. 27.—Senator Smoot of Utah, former chairman of the oil committee, disclosed today that he was advised in advance that E. L. Dohney was coming to Washington to testify about his $100,000 loan to A. B. Fall. The Utah senator said he had received the information from J. W. Zevely, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, who was at New Orleans at the time with Fall. The senator declared rumors that he had been in telegraphic communication with Fall since the former secretary announced in December that he had received the $100,000 loan from Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

CHURCH SCHOOL ON WEEK DAYS
New Dodge Brothers Types. Incorporate Many Features

In addition to their standard types of cars, Dodge Brothers are now producing a special type-A sedan, special touring car, special roadster and special 4-passenger coupe.

The standard types consist of the touring car, roadster, business coupe, 4-passenger coupe, type-A sedan and type-B sedan.

Dodge Brothers believe there is a distinct demand, especially in metropolitan centers, for a type of car with more complete equipment than that carried by the standard types. They have therefore arranged to equip as special their type-A sedan, 4-passenger coupe, touring car, and roadster. In handling the special equipment, they have been very careful to introduce only such features as will increase the beauty and comfort of the standard types without reacting unfavorably on Dodge Brothers' cars in the second-hand market.

For these special types, Dodge Brothers have adopted equipment, consisting of: nickel-plated front and rear bumpers, special stripping on body and fenders of the hood, rear view mirror, automatic windshield wiper, scuff plates, motorometer and lock, special blue leather upholstery in touring car and roadster, and disc wheel covers with 6-spoke 5.75 inch balloon wheels.

Dodge Brothers contend that the special 6-spoke 5.75 inch balloon type tire adopted by them embodies features which make it superior to the balloon tire adopted as standard by the trade, chiefly because it gives the air cushion effect in riding and has longer life with less possibility of puncture.

IS DECLARED ILLEGAL

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 26. The week day church school would have logical to some form of a state church, directly in opposition to one of the foundation principles of the American constitution and system of government, Rev. E. P. Baker, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church declared in a talk on the subject at the church.

He suggested that the church should make use of the 110 1-2 hour week when the children are not in school rather than the 27 1-2 hours when they are to give them their religious education.

Prof. E. I. Nelson, who also discussed the subject, pointed out that the schools are already struggling under a heavy burden without the addition of complications from the week day church school schedule which would cut the school day for the children concerned.

Hold School Illegal
Both speakers pointed out that a week day church school is illegal under North Dakota laws; both speakers put the problem of giving the child its religious education squarely up to the churches.

The other system, Prof. Nelson said, amounts to partitioning the public schools, and he named numerous difficulties and complications to which the plan would be subject.

Rev. Baker's address follows: In part as it is less technical than that of Prof. Nelson:

"If the church cannot teach religion effectively during the time it has at its disposal—that is during the 110 1-2 hours per week children are not in school as opposed to the 27 1-2 hours they are—what reason have we to suppose that it can and will teach it effectively during the time that at present belongs to the public schools?"

Demand Demonstration
"Let the church first demonstrate that it can do this work properly on Sunday before it asks the public school to give up some of their time to it."

The speaker then declared it reasonable to believe that first there would be a very religious instruction in the church, then the school, and last the instruction in the public school, and taught by public school teachers.

Prof. Nelson's address would be that of the teacher, he added.

Scenes Lawbreaking
It is a strange political philosophy which any man must have who would contend that because the law on this matter is being ignored or wilfully violated in 10,000 places, in this state that Fargo should do likewise."

He continued the pastor, "Are we to law abiding only as the law is suitable to us?"

"The whole proposition savors too strongly of the union of church and state, a distinct contradiction to the first amendment to our national constitution."

How any church that has been emancipated from so despicable a principle as the union of the church and the state could support such a measure is quite inconceivable.

Both speakers declared that the plan would be unfair to children of parents who did not desire to have them attend any of the religious schools. Their time, during the period spent by the others in religious instruction, would be wasted, Rev. Baker said.

Both speakers put the problem of more and better religious education, the need for which they freely admitted—up to the churches and made a plan for better Sunday schools.

The present lack of more truly moving and effective religious teaching is "the fault of the very churches which are so anxious to parasitize the best in our public schools," Mr. Nelson said.

POLAR FLIGHT PLANS PUT OFF
Washington, Feb. 26.—Plans for the navy's air expedition to the north pole were pigeon-holed at a conference between Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, and Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, commander of the dirigible Shenandoah, and preliminary work has begun for the operation of the airship this summer as an auxiliary craft assigned for duty to the scout fleet in Atlantic waters.

The Shenandoah's commander reported that she would be ready to begin tests with the fleet about May 1, repair work and overhauling of the ship resulting from injuries sustained in the recent gale which stripped her from the mooring at Lakehurst, N. J., being completed by that time.

Before the Shenandoah can begin its career as a part of the navy's first line fighting force, the dirigible will be converted into an airship tender and equipped with a mooring mast for the dirigible.

I had been annoyed for some time with a lameness and soreness through my joints and a tired, languid feeling and got no relief until I used Doan's Pills. I haven't had backache and my kidneys have been healthy since."

NINE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Steinmetz said: "The cure Doan's Pills made for me is permanent. I always recommend Doan's to my friends when I hear them complaining of kidney trouble."

SUGAR BEETS HELD BENEFIT TO DAIRYING
North Dakota Dairymen's Association Invites Expert to Speak at Grand Forks

GROWTH OF INDUSTRY

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 26. Convinced that dairying in North Dakota will be greatly benefited by introduction of sugar beet culture, the North Dakota Dairymen's Association has invited Charles H. Allen, president of the Farmers Sugar Co., Defiance, Ohio, to address the state dairymen's convention at Grand Forks, March 4. Mr. Allen will outline initial steps in a movement that many state agricultural leaders believe will result in making North Dakota one of the leading sugar producing states of the country.

Sugar is grown, not manufactured, officials of the state dairy association point out. Chemically it is nothing but sunshine and water—carbon taken from the air as the result of the sun's action on plant leaves and hydrogen and oxygen secured from the rain. The beet merely stores up sunshine and water, and when the storeroom is returned to the farm in the form of pulp, no fertility has been taken from the soil.

Experience in Denmark and certain sections of the United States where sugar beet culture and dairying are carried on together, shows that sugar beet pulp can best be put back on the farm in the form of dairy feed in combination with alfalfa and grain. Beet pulp balances the ration, acts as a laxative, and prevents danger of over-feeding protein. Without soft feed, especially during the stable feeding in the winter, profit is lost through the danger of accumulating fat around the milk-producing vessels of the animal and thus reducing production—a danger that scientific agriculturists agree is best eliminated by feeding beet pulp.

Butter and Cheese
Butter and cheese, when analyzed by chemists, likewise prove to be nothing but sunshine and water. Thus selling sugar and dairy products takes no fertility from the soil, leaders of the dairy industry here point out.

Woman Juror Is Opposed To Death For Crime
Hettinger, N. D., Feb. 26. "Since sitting through this case, I am firmly convinced that capital punishment is in no instance justifiable, believing rather that other means of punishment is just as beneficial to society."

Thus declared Mrs. Peter Conway, wife of a farmer of near Hettinger, after the close of the trial of Joseph Swift of Selfridge, South Dakota, who was charged with murder by the state for the shooting and killing of Howard Smith, but whom the jury found guilty of second degree manslaughter. Swift claimed self-defense in shooting during an altercation with Smith.

Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Loren T. Hall, wife of a coal hauler of Hettinger, N. D., had the distinction of being the first women so far as is known, to sit on a murder trial jury in North Dakota. It is understood that they were for conviction on some ground from the beginning of the jury's deliberations. Previous juries had disagreed.

A Better Way To Treat All Croupy Colds
An External Treatment That Replaces Internal Dosing. Nothing to Swallow—You Just Rub It On.

Today millions of modern mothers treat croup and children's cold troubles by the vapor method.

They use Vicks, the vaporizing salve, because it is externally applied. There's no dosing to upset a delicate little stomach.

When rubbed on over throat and chest Vicks acts like a liniment or plaster. At the same time, the ingredients, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the affected air passages.

For spasmodic croup you rub Vicks well in over throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a warm flannel cloth. An application at bedtime will prevent most night attacks.

Vicks is just as good, of course, for the other cold troubles of children and also for adults.

DAKOTANS GO TO U. S. PRISON
Fargo, N. D., Feb. 26.—Four defendants sentenced at the recent term of federal court at Minot were taken to Leavenworth federal prison Saturday by Marshal Shen and Deputy W. A. Vial.

They are Sam Kong, given five years for engaging at Minot in the narcotic trade; Gilbert J. Hoose of Hibbing, Minn., five years for violating the Mann white slave act; Alexander A. Millerweiser, one year and a day for violating immigration laws; and Ed Tuepker of Minot, given three years for selling narcotic drugs.

Delia Marsech, alleged to have smuggled drugs from Canada to a Minot dope ring, was taken to the state penitentiary at Sioux Falls, S. D., to serve a term of three years and one day. It is rumored she carried drugs in an apron with many pockets. The Sioux Falls penitentiary is one of the prisons designated for imprisonment of women federal prisoners.

A Better Way To Treat All Croupy Colds
An External Treatment That Replaces Internal Dosing. Nothing to Swallow—You Just Rub It On.

Today millions of modern mothers treat croup and children's cold troubles by the vapor method.

They use Vicks, the vaporizing salve, because it is externally applied. There's no dosing to upset a delicate little stomach.

When rubbed on over throat and chest Vicks acts like a liniment or plaster. At the same time, the ingredients, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the affected air passages.

For spasmodic croup you rub Vicks well in over throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a warm flannel cloth. An application at bedtime will prevent most night attacks.

Vicks is just as good, of course, for the other cold troubles of children and also for adults.

ELECTRICITY MAY UNCOVER MILLIONS

Anchorage, Alaska, Feb. 27.—The use of electricity, generated from coal slack in the sub-bituminous mines of the Healy fields, is one of the plans under consideration as a means of uncovering the estimated $250,000,000 in placer gold beneath the Tanana valley around Fairbanks, Chitanaika and adjacent points.

The proposal is being investigated by Professor Charles E. Russell, president of the Fairbanks agricultural college and school of mines. Experts have expressed the opinion that electricity will solve a problem that has been baffling.

With the exhaustion of the shallow ground in the Tanana valley, placer operations have been confined to hydraulic dredge and shaft work, entailing heavy expense and many hazards in prospecting. To sink shafts requires a thawing outfit and high-priced fuel, even with mines near by.

In the frozen creek beds there is no trouble from water and pumping is obviated. Yet in other places it often happens that "live" water is encountered just when the prospector is ready for sampling, and elaborate pumping operations are required. Electrical thawing is said to be feasible, while pumping, when necessary, would be reduced greatly in cost by the use of an electric pump.

If electricity is employed, it will be transmitted a distance of approximately 11 miles to Fairbanks and distributed over an area of 50 square miles.

Lack of capital has retarded the development of this region. It is held that the cheapness of the electricity would remove this obstacle.

One mine operator of the district reported that last year he took out more than $100,000, but made a profit of only $2,000, owing to the overhead cost.

With seemingly inexhaustible coal fields supplying fuel for winter generation, and the released water power of summer producing electricity during the open months, it is predicted that the next decade will see electricity supplanting all other power in Alaska and supplying the medium through which the mining of precious metal, especially gold, will become a conservative commercial venture instead of a romance with attendant hazards.

Do Not Type Love Letters

Paris, Feb. 27.—Andre de Fouquieres, who is universally accepted in France as the highest authority on social etiquette, has been asked his ruling whether a member of society, of the male sex, should use a typewriter for a letter to another member of society, of the female sex, if the letter is not strictly limited to business matters.

Decidedly not, says M. de Fouquieres. "The most elementary proper feeling that any such letter be written by hand," he declares, "it is impossible even to imagine a typed letter being addressed to a woman, although the contents might be mere commonplaces; how much more inconceivable, then, would a typed letter be if it expressed tender affections." Such a letter is bad form in that it allows the supposition that it may have been dictated to a third person."

Court Theater Destroyed By Fire

Neustrelitz, Mecklenburg, Feb. 27.—The former Neustrelitz court theatre, with a history dating back to 1731, recently was destroyed by fire. Nothing but the walls of the old building remain, but a movement has been started to erect a modern theatre.

The Neustrelitz court theatre was founded by the dukes of Mecklenburg who were known for their interest in artistic affairs. It was opened with performances by a troop of "dual actors." The last of the Mecklenburg dukes, who was deposed as a result of the revolution, took care of his theatre in a way that made it one of the best standard stages in Germany.

Pioneer's Cache Is Found

Ventura, Cal., Feb. 27.—Fortune smiled faintly on F. W. Barron, an indigent ex-Canadian soldier, when he was cutting down an old pepper tree near here recently. As the tree fell he noticed a knot hole in one of the upper branches with a piece of decayed wood nailed across it. Pulling off the board, he caused a piece of old burlap to drop and with it a roll of bills. Barron found $50, mostly of $1 denomination and all of 1841 date.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

NINETY-YEAR-OLD INVENTOR TO GRAPPLE FOR CAPTAIN KIDD'S GOLD IN MAINE

MOSES KING, JR. (INSET) AND THE DEVICE OF HIS OWN INVENTION, WITH WHICH HE HOPES TO GRAPPLE FOR CAPTAIN KIDD'S TREASURE.

By NEA Service.

"I'd ninety bars of gold, as I said, as I said."

"I'd ninety bars of gold as I said; it's ninety bars of gold, and dollars manifold."

With riches uncounted, as I said."

Lewiston, Me., Feb. 27.—This was the song of none other than Captain Kidd himself. And now comes along Moses King, Jr., styling himself, "90 years young," who says he knows where some of those 90 bars of gold are buried and he's planning to search for them with a device of his own manufacture.

Just as soon as the snows and the ice are gone from the Sheepscot river, King will start out on his expedition to grapple for the chest of gold, which he says is embedded in the river bed.

When King was a lad of 20 he joined his father's expedition up the same stream and for a similar purpose. With them went Jeremiah Trask, an old friend of the family. Trask claimed his great-grandfather had been a buccaneer with the real Captain William Kidd, the Scotchman who was executed in London in 1701 for piracy.

Trask told his friend King his great-grandfather had wanted to the fourth generation charts, maps and diagrams, showing the location in the Sheepscot river of the buried loot.

The story goes on to tell how after repeated trips made up the stream from Wiscasset in the sloop "Glory" by Moses King, Sr., Trask, a professional diver named MacGregor and young King, then a lad of 20, the party finally came across a sort of chest which they believed to be that of the notorious Captain Kidd.

But let King finish the story: "I was just 20 at the time," he says. "I remember the experience as if yesterday had been the day it happened."

"One morning shortly after sunrise as we were raising the anchor of the sloop 'Glory' to the cathead, MacGregor, the diver, noticed on one of the dukes a box-like affair resembling an old chest."

"A chest it was, and we firmly believed it to be Captain Kidd's very own. It was without a doubt the same one MacGregor had found in the mud a week before but which he had been unable to extract. But the thing was apparently so very heavy and so poorly attached to the anchor that suddenly it fell off and splashed into the river again with a terrific thud. That was the last we ever saw of it."

"Though we stayed about that spot for weeks, night and day, working and even went back on expeditions year after year we never found that chest again."

At dinner one evening last year King told this story to a Portland banker. He was fascinated by it and said he would finance another expedition up the Sheepscot river to look for Captain Kidd's treasure chest.

King, who had long been working on a grapping device, borrowed enough money to complete his invention and it is with this device he, his banker friend and a party of hibernians of New England will start up the Sheepscot river in April.

And some day, perhaps, this old lawyer-author-ex-soldier, may find his dream of childhood come true.

EMPLOYEES TO DIRECT BANK OF CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, Feb. 27.—Control of the Bank of Italy, California's largest bank in financial resources and eighth ranking financial institution in the United States, gradually is to be passed to its employees. It was announced recently by A. P. Giannini, the president. This step, he said, would be epoch making in bank management.

Giannini started the bank 20 years ago as a small one-room affair. Today this San Francisco bank has 75 branches through California, with deposits exceeding $300,000,000. The bank has 435,000 individual depositors.

The Bank of Italy has more than 2,000 employees, most of whom now own stock, according to Giannini, but his plan will assist every employee in obtaining additional stockholdings with the definite aim of eventual control passing to these workers. This is declared to be the first time a large banking institution has endeavored to turn over its affairs to employees.

Giannini was the first man in America to develop state-wide branch banking to a great success. He will retire from the presidency of the bank October 17 next, when he will become chairman of the executive board. His resignation, he said, was to relieve him from banking detail, to "give the younger fellows a chance" and to allow him time to work out the profit-sharing ownership plan.

"I am convinced," he explained, "that the day has come when those who create and uphold an enterprise should own it. My plan is not for the benefit of big executives. It is all for our workers. My plan is for every office boy and junior clerk entering this institution to know it is possible for him to share in all the profits of the bank and for himself to reach the presidency by his own efforts and ability."

In the last year Giannini has given seven of his employees places on the board of directors.

"The worker in a bank more often than not makes a better director than an outside business man," he added. "The worker is in constant touch with the banking situation."

Giannini is 51 years old. He started as a poor boy in California, working his way up from laborer to the ownership of a small commission business. When he was 31 he retired with a fortune, having built up the larger commission house handling produce on the Pacific Coast. He turned over the commission business to the workers who had been associated with him; they were permitted to buy the business through its profits. But the young commission broker did not remain idle for long. Some friends suggested that he start a bank.

Giannini said he always had insisted on having the stock holdings of the Bank of Italy widely distributed. The bank now has more than 14,000 stockholders.

Tours Continent On Horseback

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 27.—Miss Helen H. Thingstead of Lone, Wash., recently completed a horseback circle tour of the continent that required between six and seven years of intermittent traveling. She made the entire journey alone.

Her expenses for the trip were met by working along the way, and stops of three months or more were made at various cities for the purpose.

Down the Pacific Coast to Los Angeles and thence along the southern border to New Orleans, Miss Thingstead and her four-footed companion made their way. They crossed the American desert in July by traveling at night. Thence they traveled north to Virginia and turned homeward through Kansas, Colorado and Wyoming.

Miss Thingstead crossed the continental divide six times during her travels, she said, and three times encountered snow and three times it rained. She carried complete camping equipment and often relieved her horse's burden by walking considerable distances.

"A woman has nothing to fear, traveling alone," she said. "The people always were wonderfully kind to us. I usually camped near some farm house, for I had to procure food for my horse."

GORMANDIZING SHOWN BY OLD MENUS OF KINGS

Dresden, Feb. 27.—Menus of old times when kings and robber knights served tons of food and wine to their castle party guests during feasts which sometimes went on for weeks, have been appearing recently in the German newspapers which marvel at the capacities to eat and drink of the individuals living 300 or 400 years ago. Scientists and letter writers to the newspapers in general, have taken up the subject of enormous repasts, and discuss at length the appetites of the nobility of former times. The scientists agree that it is scarcely conceivable how the kings and their friends could really consume the quantities of food and drink which has been accredited to some of the famous old characters of history in Europe.

An example of a feast at the court of Hanover in the sixteenth century when 13 different meat dishes were served has been published in virtually all of the newspapers of Germany recently, and has brought out much comment, especially by writers who make comparisons of the fat days of the past centuries and the "lean" days in Germany during the war, and since.

The menu, compiled from old court records, follows:

First section—Two kinds of wine soups, baked singing birds, meat pie, venison, mutton breast, wild pork, veal roast, chicken, boiled beef, two kinds of fish, vegetables and wine.

Second section—Lobster, trout, carp, pickled meats, lamb chops, roast deer, young roast pig, ox feet, artichoke, fig cake, desert, wine and liqueurs.

In those days, it is claimed, that even in the homes of persons of the middle class the dinner usually consisted of six courses, each course consisting of seven to nine different dishes.

The old habit of gormandizing as practiced in the past, has passed away, and the scientists aver that the people of today, who do not stuff themselves, are happier and in better health generally than their gluttonous forefathers who revelled in feasts of rich foods and strong drinks and some times died of apoplexy at the table before the eyes of all their guests who were also stuffed and trying to be merry.

Prosperity For Emerald Isle

London, Feb. 27.—An era of prosperity for Ireland is dawning, says Richard D. Trotter, head of the Provincial Bank of Ireland, and further more Irish bankers are ready to stand behind the Free State in its policy for the complete reconstruction of Ireland.

In speaking recently before a meeting of London bankers, Mr. Trotter said: "The gratifying response to the issue of the Irish Free State Loan has supplied a most encouraging evidence of a growing spirit of confidence in the stability of the Free State and its government, and that feeling will be carried further when due importance is attached to the assurances of the president and his responsible ministers of their intention effectively to regulate state expenditure and income until the national budget is balanced."

Mr. Trotter added that the government has shown itself strong, firm and sympathetic, with the result that the majority of the people were with it, and most citizens respected the law.

WOULD ABOLISH WIGS AND GOWNS OF IRISH BAR

Dublin, Feb. 27.—The bill which proposes to abolish in the Free State the traditional legal system of wigs and gowns and set up in its place a modern system, has passed through the Dail and now is in the Senate. In the latter body much of the preliminary discussion of the bill had to do with the question whether wigs and gowns shall continue to be worn. The bill provides that the decision as to whether the judges and members of the bar shall wear any special costume and what that costume shall be shall rest with the minister for home affairs acting with a committee representing the legal interests.

The legal profession is strongly attached to its wigs and gowns and the subject is likely to lead to heated discussion because the government is in favor of some dignified costume that will impress upon the popular mind the realization of the change from British control of all law to the control of the Irish people. The power proposed to be given to the minister for home affairs is challenged as an undue interference with the independence of the judiciary. It is expected that the Senate will make several amendments to the bills.

Do Heavy Meals Begin to Tell?

Follow Your Meals With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They Give Stomach the Alkaline Effect That Prevent Gas, Stomach, and Sour Risings.

Those old-time husky eaters often fall down a glass of milk or a doughnut, the stomach is heavy, fills with gas and is sour and woefully dyspeptic. Truth is, it had just such attacks always, but they didn't last. Now the stomach needs help and the best thing you can do is to fortify your meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They give the stomach the alkaline effect, they help it to digest food, they give it materials to do this with, they absorb the gas, stop acidity, relieve pressure, and no matter whether it is pork and cabbage, pie and cheese, sausages and buckwheats or steak and onions, your stomach works without distress and you have none of those troubles due to indigestion or dyspepsia. Get a 60-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store. Then eat and be merry.

LEPERS APPEAL FOR MUSIC

Manila, Feb. 27.—Musical instruments are among the things asked for as presents by many of the lepers in the colony of 5,000 on Culion Island. The monotony of life in the colony and the depressing effect of the surroundings tend to decrease the value of the medical treatment, the lepers say, and for this reason they want music to help infuse an optimistic spirit into their lives.

In the shipment last Christmas of nearly 100 huge boxes filled with presents collected by clubs, schools and societies of Manila, there were included several banjos and guitars.

Soldiers Want Action in Stories

London, Feb. 27.—The old-time British soldier who scorned reading is fast disappearing, and there is a growing demand for good books and magazines in army libraries.

Recently the war office ordered the classics made available for enlisted men. Blood and thunder literature, however, still holds first place with Tommy Atkins. Among recognized works those of Dickens held first place 50 years ago; then Kipling became the vogue, with Shaw and Wells receiving some attention. Poetry does not seem to be popular with the soldier, although the song has had its place in army literature.

The formal transfer, which took place in the Warsaw Y. M. C. A. building, was the occasion for a ceremony attended by the President of Poland and many other of its notable citizens. ## REASONS WHY TAX LAWS WERE CHANGED, GIVEN

C. C. Converse, State Tax Commissioner, in Explanation at Jamestown

AIM TO CUT FARM LANDS

Necessary to Make Shifts in Taxes to do This, Says Commissioner

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 27.—Reasons which impelled the North Dakota legislature to make "marked" changes in the state tax laws were explained to a public gathering here by C. C. Converse, state tax commissioner, Mr. Converse said in part:

"In order to understand that legislation, it is necessary to take up two other features of the situation. First, the public demand for a reform in tax legislation at the time the legislature convened, and second, certain features of the tax legislation which was in effect before the last session of the legislature. During the year 1922 there was a wide spread protest against the amount of taxes upon farm lands, and an insistent demand throughout the state that legislation be adopted to relieve farm lands of an undue portion of the tax burden which they were bearing. In response to that demand, members of the legislature pledged themselves in advance to enact legislation which would relieve farm lands of a portion of the burden. The discrimination against farm lands was felt most keenly in school districts, which maintained a four-year high school course. In such districts it was not uncommon for taxes upon farm lands to be as much as $200 per quarter section per year and in some instances which have been reported but not verified, the taxes were double that amount. The owners of farm lands in such districts had not the point reached by the collection of the taxes which was so high upon these farm lands. The reply is that it was due not alone to the so-called classification but also to the so-called exemptions for taxation purposes and to the partial exemption from taxation for certain classes of property. In order to understand this, it is necessary to know that for taxation purposes property was divided into two classes, known respectively as Class One and Class Two. Class One was taxed upon the basis of its full value, while Class Two was taxed upon the basis of 50 percent of its value. Real estate and railroad property, as well as certain minor classes of property, were placed in Class one and taxed at 100 percent of value. Nearly all kinds of personal property and also residence structures in cities and villages were placed in Class Two and taxed upon a percentage of their value. So much for the classification law. The discrimination was further accentuated by the partial exemptions which were applied to four classes of personal property and to residence structures. To illustrate: If a residence occupied by the owner as his own home was appraised by the assessor at $2000, there was first deducted from this $2000 by way of exemption the sum of $500, leaving $1500, and then 50 percent of this remainder was taken, giving a taxable valuation of $750. It is true that farm buildings were exempt from taxation but experience demonstrated that in the practical administration of the law most of the value is deemed to be in the land, so that often the land was assessed at as much as 75 percent of the value of the buildings. This would not be true, of course, in cities and villages where most of the value is in the buildings and only a small portion of it is in the lots. There was a similar exemption of $200 on household furniture and a similar exemption of $100 for wearing apparel and also upon mechanic's tools, while there was a $500 exemption upon farm machinery. But you will readily realize that in no school district were there any great numbers of sets of farm machinery, so that in the aggregate the amount escaping taxation through the exemption of farm machinery was not any considerable portion of the assessed valuation of the district. But there were many residences, many sets of household furniture, and many outfits of wearing apparel in each of these high school districts so that the aggregate amount of property exempt from taxation in these three classes was very large, and this discrimination against farm land accounted, in a large measure, for the exceedingly high taxes against which the complaint was so vehement.

Why So High On Farm Lands

"This leads us to the next question which is, what was it that caused the taxes to be so high upon these farm lands. The reply is that it was due not alone to the so-called classification but also to the so-called exemptions for taxation purposes and to the partial exemption from taxation for certain classes of property. In order to understand this, it is necessary to know that for taxation purposes property was divided into two classes, known respectively as Class One and Class Two. Class One was taxed upon the basis of its full value, while Class Two was taxed upon the basis of 50 percent of its value. Real estate and railroad property, as well as certain minor classes of property, were placed in Class one and taxed at 100 percent of value. Nearly all kinds of personal property and also residence structures in cities and villages were placed in Class Two and taxed upon a percentage of their value. So much for the classification law. The discrimination was further accentuated by the partial exemptions which were applied to four classes of personal property and to residence structures. To illustrate: If a residence occupied by the owner as his own home was appraised by the assessor at $2000, there was first deducted from this $2000 by way of exemption the sum of $500, leaving $1500, and then 50 percent of this remainder was taken, giving a taxable valuation of $750. It is true that farm buildings were exempt from taxation but experience demonstrated that in the practical administration of the law most of the value is deemed to be in the land, so that often the land was assessed at as much as 75 percent of the value of the buildings. This would not be true, of course, in cities and villages where most of the value is in the buildings and only a small portion of it is in the lots. There was a similar exemption of $200 on household furniture and a similar exemption of $100 for wearing apparel and also upon mechanic's tools, while there was a $500 exemption upon farm machinery. ### Wanted Revision

"When the members of the legislature assembled, it was found that the content was almost unanimous among them that some change would have to be made in the laws I have referred to pertaining to the classification of property for taxation and the partial exemptions; and while there was this general agreement that these laws would have to be amended, it was a much more difficult matter to decide precisely what the amendment should take. There was, however, general agreement upon certain principles which they judged ought to guide them in framing legislation on this subject. One of these principles was that all property should be taxed upon an equality. Another was that no citizen should be exempt from making a fair contribution to the support of government. They proceeded to enact three tax principles into law, and unless you disagree with the principles it is pretty hard to find any fault with the legislation they enacted. The new law provides that all taxable property shall be assessed and taxed on the basis of a taxable valuation equal to 25 percent of its actual value. There is no distinction between various classes of property and there are no partial exemptions with the single exception that farm buildings are exempt.

"There were those of us who doubted the advisability of making so complete a change at a single session of the legislature. This doubtless was based not so much upon disagreement with the principles upon which the new legislation was based, as upon the belief that when legislation is enacted which has the effect of making economic changes, it is more prudent that such changes be made gradually in order that other economic factors may be given time in which to adjust themselves. Among those who entertained this view was Governor Nestos. He advised legislators that he believed it preferable to make only a portion of the changes at the 1923 session of the legislature and thus allow the two years intervening before the following session as a period for observation of the effect of the change thus made, and as a period of readjustment to the new basis. Members of the legislature, however, thought otherwise. They realized the force of the statement that economic changes should be made gradually but they emphasized the fact that the proposed legislation was intended to correct a serious injustice which had been committed against farm lands, and they adhered to the position that they should not delay the correction of an injustice merely because that correction brought with it economic changes more or less abrupt. They pointed to instances of farm lands which were gradually being wrested from their owners by the burden of supporting high schools in districts where the majority of the school patrons contributed very little to the support of the schools. In other words they put it that the owners of farm lands in such districts were paying for the education of the children of those who lived in the cities and villages, and they conceived it to be their duty to correct the injustice but to do it at once. Their attention was called to the fact that if all property was taxed upon a uniform basis of 75 percent of its value the result would be a decrease in the amount of taxes to be paid upon railroad property. Their reply was twofold.

Why Change Necessary

"First, that if it was necessary in order to lighten the burden upon farm lands to also forego a small portion of the revenue which had in recent years been coming in from railroad property, they should not on that account recede from their pledge to reduce the proportion of taxes paid by farm lands and second, that if more property was sound as they claimed it was that all property should be taxed upon an equality, then there was no reason why they should refuse to treat railroad property fairly simply because it was railroad property.

Their view prevailed

"Their view prevailed as is proper in our form of government. The governor's approval of the legislation followed as a matter of course for he had definitely committed himself to favor legislation which would relieve farm lands of a portion of their excess burden.

"There was another element of public opinion which exercised a marked influence in the shaping of this legislation and that was the opinion entertained by those who believed that the high assessed valuation which we have had in recent years has in itself contributed to extravagant expenditures. In 1918 the aggregate assessed valuation of property in our state was $388,000,000. The following year in 1919, as a result of the new legislation the assessed valuation jumped to $1,500,000,000. It was slightly less in 1921 and 1922, being in 1922, $1,308,000,000. This tremendous increase in assessed valuation was held by some to be one of the chief causes of what they considered were extravagant public expenditures, and there was a demand that the assessed valuation be reduced. The new legislation was a recognition also of that element of public opinion and resulted in decreasing the assessed valuation by $223,000,000.

Could Issue Bonds

"The higher assessed valuation taxing districts could bond themselves for larger amounts than would have been possible under the low assessed valuation in effect prior to 1919, and these large bond issues necessitated levies for interest and for sinking funds which constitute in many districts so small portion of the total tax burden.

"The legislature did not stop there in following out their purpose to reduce the burden upon farm lands. On the contrary, they supplemented this legislation with another act amending the income tax law, and another act amending the gasoline tax law so that both of these taxes are now producing a greater amount of revenue for state purposes, thus subtracting from the amount of the state levy under the general property tax.

MARKET NEWS WHEAT, OATS STRENGTHENED

Some of Yesterday's Sellers Become Buyers

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Wheat and oats sympathized with corn strength in today's early dealings. Some of yesterday's sellers of wheat turned buyers. After opening 1/2c to 1/4c to the lower, May $1.09 1/2 to $1.09 1/4, and July $1.09 1/2 to $1.09 1/4, wheat scored a moderate general advance. Later a bullish estimate of farm reserves attracted some notice. The close was firm, 1/4c to 1/2c higher, May $1.10 1/4 to $1.10 1/2, and July $1.10 1/4 to $1.10 1/2.

NEWCOMERS BRING NEW IDEAS

A big soap company tacks up a notice that it won't hire any salesmen who haven't been at least six years on their last job. If all employers did this, salesmanship would become a "closed profession"—no opportunity for a new man to start.

Such reasoning recalls the city council of London, England, which years ago passed an ordinance requiring all cab stands always to have at least one hack ready for hire. Result: A fare would rush up to the lone hackman, who couldn't leave without breaking the law.

Every large business organization needs a steady flow of "new blood." New salesmen, especially among young inexperienced men eager to learn the game and willing to work hard to that end, inject new life into the organization—like a blood transfusion.

As the organization needs newcomers, so does the whole profession.

Ancient alchemists searched centuries in their laboratories for a universal solvent—a fluid that would dissolve every known substance. Finally a young lad, a newcomer in chemistry, watched the experiments and asked blandly: "If you get it, what will you keep it in?" That ended the search.

So with organizations, professions and trades. Old-timers, experienced, know the job so thoroughly that they get in a rut. The newcomer has perspective, a fresh viewpoint, leading to new suggestions and short-cuts.

Often a group of men becomes deadlocked trying to figure out how to do a certain thing. A passerby pauses, hears their talk and, with a fresh and unfatigued viewpoint, suggests the solution.

Experts are fine, in their place. But there is such a thing as knowing a subject so thoroughly that initiative is lost.

Accordingly, the soap company is making a mistake in hiring only salesmen six years or more on their former jobs. The company can draw on outside organizations for its new blood. But that blood will be middle-aged instead of youthful. And, too, every organization has certain duties to its profession or field.

An important one of these duties is training youngsters to seize the torch of progress as it falls from weakened hands of the old-timers.

PISTOLS BY MAIL

Most cities try to curb the underworld's supply of firearms by such measures as registration of revolver sales or requiring police permits. The restrictions are counteracted by the sale of revolvers by mail-order.

A leading sporting magazine carries 12 ads offering pistols. A typical ad says: "Send no money. Order now and pay postman on arrival."

Nothing would go as far toward disarming the underworld as a national law prohibiting interstate commerce in revolvers except for officers of the law. A bill to this effect slumbers in a congressional pigeonhole. Meantime, murders by mail-order pistols continue.

FEEDS THE FURNACE

An "electric furnace man" for homes is invented. It's a machine that automatically feeds coal into the frepot and takes away the ashes, even shaking the furnace when needed. Similar automatic stokers are already in use industrially.

We seem to be approaching the time when nearly everything will be automatic, people to have no work except manufacturing machines, caring for them, producing and transporting raw materials, and growing food. That'll still be enough to keep us busy. The earth can never become a loafer's paradise, though a two-hour day is not impossible. Many already have it.

LARGEST DAM

The largest dam in the world is being built in India. It's part of a gigantic irrigation project. This dam will be nearly a mile long. A bridge on top of it will be as far above the ground as the height of the Woolworth building.

This is just one illustration of how the orient is "coming to life" after sleeping industrially for centuries in which water power—capable of lightening the burdens of millions—went to waste except for turning small "prayer wheels."

HIS ONLY FRIEND

A starving pauper, picked up unconscious in a New York street, refuses $500 for his dog. He says the dog is his only friend. Police gave him the price of a beef stew. He goes his way, and shares the stew with his dog.

A loyal friend, dog or man, is a priceless possession. In a whole lifetime, few of us make more than half a dozen such friends. Yet there are plenty of men who down-and-out, would sell their last human friend for $500 or less.

FATAL ACCIDENTS

Last year 2452 men were killed by accidents in American coal mines, the government reports. This is deplorable, and the campaign for more mine safety devices should continue. Fortunately, the death rate among miners is gradually getting less. In rough figures, one miner is killed for every 250,000 tons of coal brought to the surface.

FORD'S PAYROLL

One in every 662 Americans now is on the payroll of Henry Ford. He has about 163,000 employees. Making allowances for children, housewives and old people, not more than 30 million Americans actually work for wages or salaries or profits. And, of these, Ford employs about one in every 200.

Needles and pins, needles and pins, when a man's elected his trouble begins.

BRITAIN'S NEW PREMIER

Ramsay MacDonald's decision to take office was arrived at only after careful thought. Not even his enemies would accuse him of being a vulgar office seeker. Mr. MacDonald is a man of very high ideals, of courage, singleness of purpose and vision. Probably no man is more keenly aware that power acts but too frequently as a corrosive to the finer instincts; or, at best, blunts and stultifies them. As Prime Minister he is in a position replete with social difficulties and would-be entanglements which no foreign observer unacquainted with the subtleties woven around court influence, the traditional institution of "patronage" and the "pull" of society can adequately estimate. The old ruling class of Britain is the ablest in the world. It seldom goes in for frontal attacks; it seeks to bind, to paralyze by the invisible threads, rather than roughly to break; not to oppose or subvert openly, but to undermine. Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor Party as a whole, however, possess unexpected powers of resistance to the calculations which are even now being made.

It is noteworthy that the labor leader's determination to take office was unanimously endorsed by every branch of the movement. Not less remarkable was the spirit in which the decision was taken—not with impulsive enthusiasm or vainglorious boasting, but with a sobriety and sense of responsibility deeply impressive and with an acuteness of perception of all the pitfalls and the risks. Important, too, was the absolute blank check given to the leader to construct his government as he pleased. His eventual decisions may be silently queried, even disapproved; he cannot hope to please every one; but I doubt if his choice in any particular case, when it is made known, will be openly challenged by any section of the movement.—Current History Magazine.

WHEN PREMIERS BECOME HUMAN

Some wise man has observed that it is quite impossible to hate any one you really know—witness the mother who says that she does not down in the hearts of men is a sincere effort to be right.

Nothing bearing on international relations in months has struck the human note more impressively and touchingly than the exchange of visits between the new Premier MacDonald of England and Premier Poincare of France. The credit belongs primarily to the former for having taken the initiative in a man-to-man appeal for a spirit of friendliness and cordiality in the accommodation of the differences of the nations these men represent.

The Albert Hall address of the British premier deserves, as public political expressions do, the descriptive word "beautiful," and the letter to Poincare is in the same spirit. "We can be frank without being hostile and can defend our countries"—which, once appreciated, would go far to minimize the dangers of wars.

The response of Poincare is an almost impulsive reaching forth for a preferred hand: "My own frankness will be no less than yours, and if, in defense of French interests, I show the same fervor as you in defense of British interests, you may be sure that nothing will ever change the cordiality of my deep-rooted feelings"—which promises much.

The moment statesmen divorce themselves from the idea that in international controversies they must strike a theatrical pose in order to play a stunning role upon the stage, and realize that they may meet as men in the spirit of the world, they will be less frequently in the shadows.

MacDonald has struck a new note—and it is musical.—New York World.

THE UNITED STATES AND LATIN AMERICA

No citizen of the United States, familiar with this country's history, will feel justified in any quixotic expectations regarding our whole policy toward Latin America.

The United States had done much work which is distinctly on the side of the angels in Latin America.

Yet, surveying our policy as a whole, it must be said that there is justification for the apprehension felt everywhere between the Rio Grande and Tierra del Fuego as to what the United States ultimately intends to do.

This apprehension will never be allayed until the more or less futuristic imperialism of our government policy is succeeded by a new approach of candid and open friendliness, based on the desire, in peace and good will to advance the interests of all nations alike—the sort of attitude which we are so fond of advising the European powers to use in their relations with one another.

For such a policy an informed and enlightened public opinion in the United States is an indispensable prerequisite—and a prerequisite which unfortunately shows few signs as yet of coming into existence.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When the seven league boots walked into the Market Town in Beantank Land, with no body to be seen inside them, there was such a rushing and scrambling as never had happened before.

Fruit sellers, peddlers, butchers and green grocers took one look and fled, upsetting stalls and knocking over stands and yelling at each other as though they had lost their senses.

And indeed they had, nearly for not one of them knew that the Twins were inside of the boots. They thought the boots were bewitched.

Nancy stuck her head out of the crack in her boot. "Nick!" she called. "We've got the whole place to ourselves. Market Town's empty. All the giants have gone and about themselves up in their houses. What had we better do now?"

"Keep on going," advised Nick. "We'll go to the King's Palace up on the hill."

"But he is a cranky, mean old king!" said Nancy. "And so is the queen. They are the only giants in Beantank Land who aren't kind and jolly. I'm sorry we scared all the market people so."

"I have an idea!" cried Nick suddenly. "Let's go and make the king and queen behave themselves."

"All right," nodded Nancy merrily. "Come along! That's a very good idea."

So away went the Twins again, boots and all, right through the Market Town and past the mill (as big as four churches) and three cottages put together and over a bridge (as big as a rainbow) and through a valley and past a forest, where even the bears and deer fled as the queer boots approached with nobody to be seen inside.

By and by they came to the hill where the palace was.

And they climbed it and came to a gate.

"Now what?" called Nancy to Nick. "Shall we just wish ourselves over, boots and all?"

"No! Jump as hard as you can and make your old boot kick the gate. I'll jump, too! If we kick loud enough somebody will come and open it," said wise Nick.

So they kicked, bang, bang, bang, heavily bang! went the seven league boots.

"Hold on there! Not so fast, come an enormous voice on the other side of the gate. "Who are you that dare to kick on the gate of His Grand Majesty the King of Beantank Land?"

At that a big key was turned and the gate swung open.

There stood a fat, old, bald-headed giant in knee breeches and a velvet coat, with a bunch of keys in his hand.

But all he saw was a pair of big boots standing there alone, which proceeded to walk past him without so much as by-your-leave, right into the courtyard of the palace and up the palace steps.

The big fat gatekeeper giant did what everybody else had done. He gave one yell and ran, as fast as his fat legs would carry him, down the road and away to dear knows where.

"Hee, hee, hee!" giggled the Twins. "A brave gatekeeper the king has!"

Capitalizing a Misfortune
A clerk in a retail clothing store stayed out so late at night that he felt compelled to snatch naps during store hours.

Being a relative of a member of the firm was all that saved him from being fired.

The manager, becoming exasperated, enlisted the aid of one of his assistants. The next day, the lethargic clerk found himself in the pajamas department. On the counter before him was a sign which read:

"Our pajamas are of such superior quality that even the man who sells them can't keep awake."—Printers' Ink Monthly.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHONTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

Well here I am, dear Bee, and nicely settled. I like my work immensely, and am especially pleased with my new boss, John Alden Prescott, whom you have met. I think Leslie certainly should be especially happy in her married life, but some way, back in my head, I have a feeling that she isn't.

I can't possibly think, however, that Mr. Prescott is to blame. He seems so frank and sincere, and altogether pleasant. You know I haven't seen Leslie since before her marriage. I wonder if she has changed. It is always a dangerous thing for a wealthy girl to marry a poor man, you know.

I have often wondered why Mr. Hamilton did not settle a sum of money upon Leslie when she married. It seems he had some old-fashioned idea that every young man and woman should live upon what their husbands could make. Modern fathers forget that they have brought their daughters up to great luxury instead of making them capable of living on the small salary.

Of course, my dear Bee, I have no valid reason for writing any of these things to you. The only thing which makes me think all is not right with Leslie and her husband is the fact that he, poor man, seems dreadfully worried over something. I know it isn't money, for, being his secretary and knowing all about his financial affairs, I can see that he is not in debt. But I have heard him say many times in the few days I have been here that he wished he could afford to give Leslie a new motor or some other expensive thing I know she has been accustomed to having.

He is a great big boy, Bee, open-hearted and open-handed, quick to anger and just as quick to acknowledge his mistake. He is a perfect genius for advertising. I told him this morning that he was wasting his talents by working on a salary.

XXX (Continued)

What was it she demanded in love, that she had sought so ardently and ever missed? Could he give it to her? Was she merely glamored once more, caught up again in the delusions of youth, with her revived brain and re-awakened senses, and this time only because the man was of a type novel in her cognizance of men? Useless to plead the urge of the race in her case. . . . Nevertheless, many women, deeded the power of reproduction, fell as mistakenly in love as the most fertile of their sisters. But hardly a woman of Mary Zattiany's exhaustive experience! She certainly should know her own mind. Her instincts by this time must be compounded of technical knowledge, not the groping inherited flashes playing about the shallow soul of youth.

If her instincts had been deeper meaning than passion or even intellectual homology. After all, her conversations, if vital, had been few in number.

Perhaps she had found, with her mind's trained antennae, some one of those hidden layers of personality which she alone could reveal to herself. What was it? She wanted far more than love-making and mental correspondence. What was it? He wished he knew. Tenderness? He could give her that in full measure. Sentiment? He was no sentimentalist, but he believed that he possessed the finer quality. Fidelity? That was not worth consideration. Appreciation of the deepest and best in her, sympathetic understanding of all her mistakes and of all that she had suffered? She knew the answer as well as he did. The abil-

He concluded dispassionately that he never could feel inferior to any woman. Women might arrest the attention of the world with their talents, change laws and wring a better deal out of life than man had accorded them in the past, but whatever their gifts and whatever their achievements they always had been and always would be, through their physical disabilities, their lack of ratiocination, of constructive ability on the grand scale, the inferiors of men. The rare exceptions had proved the rule, and no doubt they had been cast in one mould and finished in another.

In sheer masculine arrogance he was more than her match. Moreover, there were other ways of keeping a woman subject.

Did he love her? Comprehensively and utterly? Clear thinking fled with the last of his doubts?

And when a man de-taches himself from the gross material surface of life and wings to the realm of the imagination, where he glimpses immortality, what matter the penalty? Any penalty? Few had the thrice blessed opportunity. If he were one of the chosen, the very demigods, fearing at mortals, would hate him.

And then abruptly he fell asleep.

XXXI

He went direct from the office that evening to Mrs. Oglethorpe's house in Gramercy Park. During the morning he had received the following note from her, and he had puzzled over it at intervals ever since:

"Dear Lee: "Will you dine alone with an old woman tonight—a rather bewildered and upset old woman? I suppose to the young nothing is too new and strange for readjustment, but I have hardly known where I am these last few days. You are the only friend I care to talk to on the subject, for you always understand. I am probably older than your mother and I look old enough to be your grandmother, but you are the only person living with whom I ever feel inclined to lay aside all reserve. Old men are fossils and young men regard me as an ancient wreck preserved by family traditions. As for women I hate them and always did. Do come and dine with a lonely puzzled old woman unless you have an engagement impossible to break. Don't bother to dress."

"Your affectionate old friend," "Jane Oglethorpe."

"What's up?" Clavering had thought as he finished it. "Mary or Janet?"

It was an extraordinary letter to receive from Mrs. Oglethorpe, the most fearsome old woman in New York. To Clavering she had always shown the softer side of her nature and he knew her person better or at all events more intimately, than any of her old friends, for she had not treated him as a negligible junior even when he arrived in New York at the tender age of twenty-two. His ingenuous precocity had amused her and she had discovered a keen interest in the newspaper world of whose existence she had hardly been aware; no interviewer had ever dared approach her; and as he grew older developing rapidly more and more unlike her sons and her sons' friends, they had fallen into an easy pallid intimacy, were frank to rudeness, quarrelled furiously, but fed each other's wisdom and were deeply attached. During the war she had knitted him enough socks and sweaters to supply half his regiment; and when he had left the hospital after a serious attack of influenza it had been for the house in Gramercy Park, where he could have remained indefinitely had he wished.

But in all the years of their intimacy never before had she "broken," given a hint that she felt the long generation between them.

He found her more interesting in talk than any girl, except when he was brief in love, and her absence of vanity, her contempt for sentiment in any of its forms, filled him with a blessed sense of security as he spent hours stretched out on the sofa in her upstairs sitting room, smoking and discussing the universe. She was not an intellectual woman, but she was sharp and shrewd, a monument of common sense and worldly wisdom. It would be as easy to hoodwink her as the disembodied Minerva, and it was doubtful if any one made even a tentative attempt. Clavering wondered which of those ingenuities was to be revealed tonight.

As he stood in the drawing room waiting for her to come down he examined for the first time in many years the full-length picture of her painted shortly before her marriage.

It met her in many moods, never to weary her with monotony. He was a man of many moods himself. What had saved him from early matrimony was a certain monotony in women, the cleverest of them.

But there must be something beyond some subtle, spiritual demand, developed throughout nearly twice as many years as he had dwelt on earth; born not only of an aspiring soul and terrible disenchants, but of a wisdom that only years of deep and living experience, no mere intelligence, however brilliant, could hope to assemble. He was thirty-four. There was no possible question that at fifty-eight, if he lived sanely, and his intellectual faculties had progressed unimpeded, he would look back upon thirty-four as the monogamy of life—when the future was a mighty abyss of wisdom whose brink he had barely trod. She herself was an abyss of wisdom. How in God's name could he ever cross it? Her body might be young again, but never her mind. Never her mind! And then he had a flash of insight. Perhaps he alone could rejuvenate that mind.

Certainly he could make her forget. Men and women would be aged at thirty, but for this beneficent gift of forgetting. . . . He could make the present vivid enough.

He explored every nook of those personalities of his, determined to discover if he felt any sense of inferiority to this woman who knew so much more, had lived and thought and felt so much more, than himself—whom he still visioned on a plane above and apart. No woman was ever more erudite, in the most brilliant and informing declensions of life, whatever the disenchantsments, and for thirty years she had known in varying degrees of intimacy the ablest and most distinguished men in Europe. She had been at no pains to conceal her opinion of their intellectual superiority over American men.

Social and Personal

Domestic Science, Manual Training Subjects Defended

A regular meeting of the Mothers Social club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. E. Perry, 523 Second street. The usual program was carried out, which consisted of a very well written paper on "Noted Americans" by Mrs. Ray Bergeson and a splendid reading given by Mrs. Perry which showed the little personal touches and intimacies in the life of the Great Emancipator, Lincoln.

The subject of reducing the taxes through the medium of the schools was then discussed by the club and a committee of three, Mrs. C. O. Robinson, Mrs. A. P. Lennhart and Mrs. D. T. Owens was appointed to cooperate with other women's organizations in the locality and state to ascertain if means cannot be taken to reduce taxation through other channels as well as schools, thereby releasing pressure of the taxation to some extent.

Taxation is a matter of wide comment and great concern to the members of this organization, and they feel that it is a grave mistake that the first definite and state-wide organized effort at the vitally needed reform in tax reduction should be directed toward the schools. The lowering of teachers' salaries would ultimately bring into our state, a class of teachers of a lower moral tone and poorer training, and would be more detrimental than anyone other activity to the children's future good and would give the state a low standing in the eyes of those who may be considering emigrating here, according to speakers before the club.

It is also desired, by the Mothers Social club to continue the reduction of taxes as much as possible to the elimination of the elective subjects and non-essentials. Many girls receive no training in the intelligent management of the home, except through the Domestic Science department of the High School, speakers said, and the Mothers club feels that only by the institution of a home science department have the most important branch of household care come from a low grade of work to something which is hoped may sometime be regarded as a profession.

The Manual Training department, will at least, enable a boy to take up some form of work, after leaving school and to give intelligent supervision if not actual assistance in building his own home, speakers argued.

Before these departments are eliminated, the club feels that some attention should be given to reducing the secret rolling and unrolling of red tape, which costs the state vast sums in extra taxes, speakers asserted.

FORM ASSOCIATION

J. Henry Kling, manager of the Bismarck Credit Bureau, was at Minot recently to speak before Minot merchants, who had gathered to consider the establishment of a bureau similar to that in Bismarck. After discussion it was decided to form the Minot Retail Merchants Association and Credit Bureau along these lines, and officers were named. Mr. Kling went to Minot to speak at the request of the Association of Commerce of that city.

ISSUE INVITATIONS

Invitations have been issued by members of the Knights of Columbus for a dancing and card party to be given Friday evening at the school hall and gymnasium, as the last pre-Lenten affair of the organization. The committee are making preparations for an unusually large crowd. Prizes will be awarded at cards and a buffet luncheon will be served.

TO GIVE MASQUERADE PARTY

Bismarck Canton No. 5, P. M. I. O. O. F. will give a large masquerade ball Thursday evening, February 28, at Odd Fellows Hall, corner of Main and Third streets. A prize of $5 will be given to the couple with the most original costume, and $3 for the couple with the most comical costume. Visiting Odd Fellows and Rebekahs welcome.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB MEETS

The Fortnightly Club held their regular meeting with Mrs. W. L. Nussle, at her home, 710 Second Street. The study of the Near East was continued with a paper upon "Missionary Efforts" by Mrs. Langer. "Relief Work" was well given by Mrs. Robert Orr, with a discussion by Mrs. P. J. Meyer.

BAPTIST LADIES AID

The Baptist ladies will hold their regular meeting tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. R. D. Hoskins at her home on Fourth street. This will be a social meeting and all members and friends are asked to attend this meeting and bring a friend. Those attending are asked to bring their thimbles.

SEWING CIRCLE TO MEET

St. Mary's Sewing Circle will meet tomorrow afternoon at the school hall at 2:30. Mrs. A. E. Barrett and Mrs. Matt Boesflug will act as hostesses. A good attendance is desired.

STOPS OFF IN BISMARCK

DEGREE OF HONOR MEETING

A regular meeting of the Degree of Honor will be held tomorrow evening, February 28, at 8 o'clock at the A. O. U. W. hall. Every member is requested to be present.

TO GRAND FORKS

P. A. Neibauer was the employee from the Russell-Miller Co. of this city who left for Grand Forks yesterday instead of M. P. Neibauer as stated in last evening's issue.

JUNIOR PLAYMAKERS MEET

The Junior Playmakers will hold their regular meeting this evening at 7 o'clock in the High School Assembly. All members are urged to be present as a very interesting program has been arranged by the committee. A one act comedy, "And the Lamp Went Out" with the following cast will be presented:

Render ..... Gwendolyn Jones
Evelyn De Vere (Heroine) ..... Ruth Rubin.
Ralph Grayson (Hero) ..... William Smith.
Mrs. De Vere (Evelyn's mother) ..... Barbara Register.
Herbert Vanderslice (Villain) ..... Ronald McIntyre.

A short impromptu entertainment will then be given and each member will then be given with something to contribute to this number on the program. A "Mystery Race" will then be held and a prize awarded the winner. Selections by the Junior Playmakers Orchestra will conclude the evening's entertainment.

ENTERTAIN AT PLEASANT PARTY

One of the most pleasant parties to be given recently was the benefit party given by a committee from the Business and Professional Women's club at their club rooms last evening. Twenty-five tables were played during the evening with prizes for bridge going to Miss Bertha Burton and Orlan Olson. Prizes for whist were awarded to Miss Henrietta Lund and Mrs. Hagen. After the game a very dainty lunch was served by the committee in charge of arrangements. This was the first of a series of parties which the club plan to give to help finance the state convention which will be held in Bismarck, some time in May.

ATTEND PROGRAM

A number from this city drove out to the Indian school last evening to attend the Washington and Lincoln exercises put on by the girls of the school, under the direction of the teachers. The program was splendidly rendered and those attending were very complimentary in their praise of the nature of the entertainment.

ANNUAL PIONEER'S MEETING

The annual meeting of the Pioneer's Association will be held this evening at the Grand Pacific hotel. Members are asked to be present so the meeting can be called to order at 8 o'clock. Plans are made to accommodate a large crowd and to provide a good time for the affair.

AT VALLEY CITY

Captain G. A. M. Anderson of this city was in Valley City and Jameson attending to business in connection with the guard units of these cities. Mr. Anderson is instructor of the National Guard of North Dakota.

RETURNS FROM JAMESTOWN

W. A. Falconer returned from Jamestown last evening where he attended a meeting of the City Assessors of the state which was held in that city yesterday.

AT THE MOVIES

Viola Dana, the diminutive Metro star is due in Bismarck again to night, when she begins a two day engagement at the Capitol Theatre in her newest picture, "The Heart Bandit." Miss Dana's latest production is reported to be a combination of comedy and drama that makes it the most successful of her Metro series. The star is given the opportunity for both character and comedy work, the story affording a wide variety of atmosphere and action, and she is said to have made it her most appealing role.

Milton Sills, who takes rank as one of the most popular leading men in the films, appears opposite Miss Dana in "The Heart Bandit," being seen in a Dana picture for the first time since "Dangerous to Men," several years ago.

The story of "The Heart Bandit," which was written by Fred Kennedy Myton, concerns a girl bandit of New York's Bowery. Molly O'Hara is called "Angel Face" by her cronies in Spike Malone's gang of stick-up men because she looks so innocent and incapable of robbing anyone. As a matter of fact, she is a thief only because she has never learned to be anything else.

THE ELTINGE

Anita Stewart at the Eltinge theatre today and tomorrow in "The Love Piker," is cast as Hope Warner, who considers herself a superior person. When a traffic officer stops her for exceeding the speed limit she waxes indignant. Close behind comes Martin Van Huisen, who steps out of his car and hands Hope a sable scarf, explaining that it had fallen from her car some twenty miles back. Both are arrested for speeding. So it is that this pair meet again in the traffic court the next morning. It develops that Martin is a construction engineer in the employ of Hope's father. It is not long before Hope announces her engagement to Martin. Many surprising and unexpected incidents mark their courtship, episodes that are best left for the picture to reveal.

VISITORS WELCOME

Visiting Masons are welcome at the Masonic Temple Dance Friday. Reservations will be made for them by Wm. Harris.

SLEEVE STYLES

Sleeves are very tight and tailored or very wide at the wrist, with a colorful lining showing.

SELF TRIMMING

Self trimmings are preferred to almost any other type on the smartest gowns.

PARISIAN NOVELTIES

At the Paris style openings there many novelties in the way of jabots, lace trills, lapels and collars.

TO PERPETUATE MEMORY OF LAFAYETTE

New York, Feb. 27.—A memorial in France to the Marquis de Lafayette, to perpetuate the memory of this famous Frenchman through good works, is the accomplishment in a period of four years of an American society known as The Lafayette Memorial, which has the support and cooperation of a large number of prominent French and American men and women. The memorial today is not a project, but a going concern, taking the form of a school and orphanage; a pre-tubercular sanatorium, and finally a museum.

It is the purpose of the society to maintain the Chateau Lafayette, in central France as a permanent memorial to the marquis and to the memory of the allied heroes who were killed in the world war. It should become members of the society say, an American national memorial like Mt. Vernon on the Potomac, the birthplace of George Washington.

The memorial is located in the old Lafayette chateau, at Chavagnac, 350 miles south of Paris, where the marquis was born in 1757. This property, consisting of various buildings and 175 acres of land, has been acquired by the society. The chateau was the home of Lafayette's ancestors for centuries, and here the French hero of American independence grew up to early manhood. The building has been restored, where necessary, and made sound and solid throughout. New structures have been added to the group, and everything has been provided, in the way of improvements, for the health, comfort and proper education of the children cared for by the memorial.

A modern water supply has been installed, and modern plumbing and sanitary equipment have been established in all the buildings, which are served by a modern sewage disposal plant. Electric light and central heating have been put in, and a modern dairy with a fine herd has been established to furnish the best milk and butter. Part of the domain has been modernized and extended so as to afford the finest of farm products. A cobbler's shop has been created to make boots for the children, and there is a carpenter shop for estate repairs. Modern fire protection has been installed. There are baseball and football fields, tennis courts and a swimming pool.

In the school and pre-venturism which house today a total of 250 children, war refugees and war orphans, the outdoor training of an American school is given. The youngsters are taught boxing, baseball, etc., and also receive a first-class training for the French baccalaureate examination. When they are old enough these boys will be sent out to receive training in the big businesses of America such as the United States Steel Corp., General Electric, General Motors, etc., and so on.

Forty of the boys in the school are French, 25 Russians, 25 Polish and ten Italian.

The head of the school is an experienced Anglo-Saxon master assisted by an able staff. It can be seen that nowhere in France is there a group of boys of similar ages, from 8 to 16 years, receiving a better education than the boys in the Lafayette School.

The prevention of run on the "lines" employed by Dr. Rollier in Switzerland, and in cooperation with the department of public hygiene of the French government. Here some 200 delicate children from 5 to 12 years old, threatened with tuberculosis, are given sunlight, good food, and careful attention. When their health permits they are given elementary education, and later they may pass on to the advanced school in the chateau.

The museum is housed in the chateau itself and centers in the room in which Lafayette was born. Here are many interesting relics, such as Washington's duelling pistols, which were given to him by Lafayette; the snuff box given to Lafayette by the city of New York; a ring of Benjamin Franklin with some of his wife's hair in it, etc.

There are also many relics of the recent war, such as the uniforms of General Joffre and other leaders, guns, gas-masks, parachutes, etc.

Rancher Veteran Of Many Wars

Sheridan, Wyo., Feb. 27.—Nick Wildt, a native of Siberia, has entered a reposing phase of an adventurous career by taking up a homestead on a Wyoming ranch.

Wildt was drafted into the Russian army at the tender age of 9. At 17 he was a Cossack trooper. He fought at Port Arthur and in three other major engagements of the Russo-Japanese war. In 1908 he was assigned to the late Czar's personal bodyguard, and remained in this service in St. Petersburg for six years. In August, 1914, he took part in the first battle of the Russo-German war on the eastern front.

Wildt was wounded at Posen and taken prisoner, but finally escaped from Hamburg on a British submarine. He made his way to the United States in 1915, but returned to France with the American army two years later. He fought in six more

FORMER BEGGAR NOW A BANKER

Berlin, Feb. 27.—A bank conducted by a former match seller and beggar near Alexander Place, the heart of the section where the poorest of Berlin's poor live, has the call over the big banks of the city for the payment of dividends, street fakirs, street musicians, chorus girls and others in lowly station. The proprietor of the bank, Emil Neumann, formerly was a stockbroker. He lost his money by speculation and about the same time he lost a leg when run over by a train.

For ten years Neumann had been one of the street folk, selling matches and begging. One day he was recognized by an old friend, who advanced sufficient money to him to establish himself as a broker and money dealer on a small scale. The street folk had confidence in him and gave their marks to him. The confidence was rewarded in receipts in dollars, pounds or other stable currency, and hence the street folk's routine to purchase Neumann's bank in preference to the others which give receipts only in marks.

Paris, Feb. 27.—The theatre goers of Paris are supporting today the right of audiences to condemn as well as applaud the work of actors on the stage, and to this end they quote Moliere, who said that this was a privilege one purchased along with his theatre ticket.

Whistling in a French theatre is more of an insult to the actor than hissing in an American playhouse, and recently it has been freely practiced in the dignified and staid Grand Theatre, in recognition of their services to the Greek deportees in Constantinople.

JACK DEMPSY VS. OLD GUARD

BY JOE WILLIAMS

How would Jack Dempsey have fared with the old-timers? Would he have beaten Bob Fitzsimmons? Possibly. Fitz was not a fine defensive fighter. It was not hard to hit him. And he was none too rugged. That old Cornishman never would have been able to come back after taking a few of Dempsey's blows.

On the other hand could Dempsey have withstood the shock of one of Baby Bob's haymakers? There never was a big fellow who hit with greater accuracy and force than Fitz, and this does not except Firpo, who floored the current champion last summer.

Jim Jeffries would have given Dempsey an interesting engagement. Jeff was heavier, tougher, more enduring and more experienced than the present champion.

The men he met and defeated were, generally speaking, far superior to those Dempsey shattered. Jeff, naturally left-handed, hit well with that hand. His right was not so good.

It is probably safe to say Dempsey is more of a panicky man than the bolder modern. Sharkey, for instance, would not have been able to absorb Jack's wallop for 20 and 25 rounds as the sailor did when he met Jeffries on two occasions.

Dempsey vs. Johnson—which would have won? His great height, long reach and extraordinary defensive skill would have given Johnson quite an advantage.

Yet, the whirlwind Dempsey might have won in an early round. Johnson was inclined to be careless.

"Had Jeff followed up that blow he would have made Johnson quit cold," says Tex Rickard, who promoted the battle.

You can say this for Dempsey: When he gets an opening he doesn't hesitate to swarm in and fill it with destruction.

Dempsey never lets a wounded bird wing its way back to safety. He is probably the greatest natural fighter the heavyweight division has ever developed, a natural fighter with the ferocious, destructive instinct of a savage.

Billy Evans Says

Much ado is being made of the fact that at 40 Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, is still fighting and doing a good job of it. Jack's favorite pastime at present is brushing aside youthful fighters who insist all they need is a chance at Mickey Walker to gain the title. The fact that Britton is 40 is stressed. The record books state that Jack will be 40 in October. Intimate friends of Jack say that he is closer to 43 than the fair and square.

Is there any good reason why a fighter who has taken proper care of himself should not be able to hold his own in the fistie game at 40?

Failure of a majority of fighters to take the proper care of themselves at all times is the reason for Britton standing out as such an unusual figure. Fame and hero worship are the besetting sins of most ringmen. Winning fame, often overnight, causes many of them to change their entire mode of living. They throw aside the care and caution that made it possible for them to attain their great physical power and the prestige that invariably goes with it.

Bob Fitzsimmons and Johnny Dundee are to be classed with Britton. Fitz won the heavyweight title from Corbett when he was around the 35 mark, while Dundee copped the feather title at 30.

The career of Johnny Dundee as a ringster is a most remarkable one, a great lesson to every youngster ambitious to win fistie honors. Dundee began fighting in 1910. After over a dozen years of battling, meeting fighters in all classes, usually giving away from five

DYKES SEEKS REGULAR JOB

JIMMY DYKES.

The purchase of Second Baseman Max Bishop from Baltimore by Connie Mack means that Jimmy Dykes will not be used at second by the Athletics. Bishop has been the keystone of the pennant-winning infield of the Baltimore Orioles. Manager Jack Dunn of that team says he has been ripe for the majors for several years. He has no doubt of his making good in the American League.

If such is the case, Jimmy Dykes must either warm the bench or try to displace Sammy Hale at third. Dykes prefers third to second base and for a time was used at that position by Mack.

"GREATEST OUTFIELDER I EVER SAW"

Tris Speaker's Comment on Hap Felsch, Baseball Outcast

HAP FELSCH

BY BILLY EVANS

Hap Felsch is jailed for perjury. The wires carried that terse message the other day.

What an inglorious finish to the career of one of the greatest outfielders in the history of the game.

Four years ago Felsch was one of the outstanding figures of baseball, vying with Tris Speaker for the honor of being classed as the game's greatest outfielder.

At the height of his baseball career, in a position to demand a salary in the five figures, on the road to be a wealthy man as athletes go, Hap Felsch is now a baseball outcast.

From his lofty position as one of the idols of the national pastime, a heroic figure of the game, he is now down and out.

Instead of having his name almost daily feature the sport headlines, instead of drawing a big salary for his month's work, he is eking out a mere existence as the proprietor of a small grocery store in Milwaukee.

World of Ability

The glory of Felsch has been forever dimmed by his alleged part in the baseball scandal of 1919, yet I will always remember him as one of the greatest players the game has ever produced.

to 15 pounds, Dundee at the age of 30 won the featherweight title. He became a champion at an age when a majority of fighters have retired from the ring or are in the "has-been" class.

Dundee's career is a great tribute to clean living. A believer in the theory that there is no better conditioner than real competition, he has made it a point to keep busy. Fighting is a serious business, with Dundee. Always in shape to fight he never passed up a worthwhile opportunity.

The fight game is a severe one, physically. However, failure to be properly conditioned often is the reason for a fighter taking much punishment that could otherwise be avoided. Baseball takes a lot out of the athlete, but many of the star players have done their best work between 30 and 40. Take the cases of Johnson, Cobb, Speaker, Collins and many others. True, Jack Britton is to be much commended for being able to step along with the best boys of his weight at the age of 40, his status is something of a knock to a majority of the fighters who usually pass out before they have reached the 30 mark.

THAT'S KIRKWOOD FOR YOU

Joe Kirkwood won the Texas open golf championship with the fine score of 270, finishing seven strokes ahead of his nearest competitor. The Australian, in one of his inspired moods, had two 68's. When this fellow is good, he's invincible.

HAS MANUSCH A WEAKNESS?

When Detroit expects big things from Outfielder Manusch this year, American League pitchers seem to think his batting can be slowed down considerably if he is properly pitched to. The consensus of the pitchers is that he doesn't like a fast ball on the inside, letter high.

"BLIND JACK" QUILTS.

Jack Wolfe, the bespectacled heavyweight of Cleveland, has decided to give the boxing game the festive go-by and will devote his future waking hours to the honorable and less bruising task of selling life insurance. "I only got $300 for beating Young Montreal the other night. Is that a business for a Hebrew boy?" Wolfe demands to know.

WILL MISS BOECKEL

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves is bumping into trouble weeks before the opening of

Felsch had a world of natural ability, he lacked only the color and initiative to have made him as famous as Ty Cobb.

"Never saw his equal as an outfielder unless it is Tris Speaker," remarked the veteran Kid Gleason one day last summer as we discussed Felsch. "Gleason was very fond of the big outfielder and there was just a trace of a tear in his eye as he remarked:

Ruined Many a Career

"What a shame those boys fell from grace. It ruined their careers and spoiled mine. Why, I could have won three or four more pennants with that club and perhaps as many world series.

"The scribes would have been calling me the wonder man instead of just plain Kid Gleason."

And now listen to a remark that Tris Speaker made just after Felsch had been barred from further participation in baseball by Judge Landis:

"He's the greatest outfielder I have ever seen."

Instead of a picture of Hap Felsch stalking off the ball field to the cheers of the multitude, for our last impression of that great athlete, we see a couple of policemen taking him to his cell in a jail.

What a shame!

the season. In the death of Tony Rucka, he loses one of the most valuable players on the team.

EVANS COMING BACK

Chick Evans, noted Chicago golfer, who suffered serious financial setbacks last year, is said to be coming back splendidly. Evans is doing double-time work as broker and writer. His golf articles are nationally distributed.

HERE'S MORE FISH, BOYS!

Apparently Lalo Dominguez, lightweight champion of Cuba, isn't such

POOR HEALTH SPOILS PLAY

JIMMY O'CONNELL

The "big bust" of the 1923 season in the National League was Outfielder Jimmy O'Connell, highly touted recruit of the New York Giants.

O'Connell cost McGraw $75,000 in real money, but last year wasn't worth six bits to the New York club. Despite his poor showing McGraw hasn't entirely lost faith in the big fellow. He is of the opinion that too much publicity was O'Connell's great handicap. Now that the press agent stuff has died down, he believes O'Connell will work natural, rather than strained, and show much better results.

Neither has O'Connell lost faith in himself. He blames his poor showing to ill health, the result of an attack of typhoid fever.

a much as a fighter. An unknown New Yorker by the name of Sid Bernard was giving the champion a neat pasting when rain broke up the fight in the eighth round.

AFTER DEMPSEY'S RECORD

When Luis Firpo returns to this country he will take on a number of stuffed shirts as an appetizer. Fred Fulton is one of the set-ups that will be sent against him. Firpo will try to knock Fulton out quicker than Dempsey did. Dempsey's record is 11 seconds.

$15,000 Golf Rake-ins.

The average golf professional won't pull down more than $6,000 a year. But the stars of the game get much more. The average for this set is close to $15,000 a year, while the biggest of the lot, the exhibition players like Kirkwood, Hagen and Sarazen, get closer to $25,000.

Lengthen the Great

After defaulting in the second tennis tourney at Cannes because of illness, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, noted French tennis champion, went to Nice and finished first in the singles, mixed doubles and women's doubles. All her triumphs were scored with comparative ease.

Investigate Murders At Janina

Gageva, Feb. 27.—The special military commission which investigated the murder of the Italian officers at Janina has submitted its report and declares that it is in no position to give final and definite decision as to where the responsibility really lies. It was the murder of these Italian officers that led to the Corfu incident and for a time threatened the existence of the League of Nations.

The commission's report said that if the truth is ever to be discovered it is essential that there should be full agreement between the Greek and Albanian governments and suggested that at least one neutral who is an expert in criminal investigation be placed at the disposal of the two governments.

Colonel Beaud, the Italian member of the commission, subscribed to the report, but reserved the right to forward to the conference of ambassadors a special report on "certain circumstances which already enable me to fix serious responsibility on Greece and to give indications which may lead to the discovery of the authors of the crime."

The commission's report was submitted to the conference of ambassadors, which in turn sent it to the League of Nations. Premier Poincare of France, as chairman of the conference of ambassadors, explained in a letter that accompanied the report, to the league that although the ambassadorial body considers every effort should still be made to discover and punish the murderers it believes that it has no further competence in the matter.

JACK DEMPSY
VS. OLD GUARD

BY JOE WILLIAMS

How could Jack Dempsey have fought with the old timers? Would he have beaten Bob Fitzsimmons? Possibly. Fitz was not a fine defensive fighter. It was not hard to hit him. And he was none too rugged. That old Cornhusker never would have been able to come back after taking a few of Dempsey's blows.

On the other hand could Dempsey have withstood the shock of one of Ruby Rube's haymakers? There is no way of knowing. But with greater accuracy and force than Fitz, and this does not count Fitz, who floored the current champion last summer.

Jim Jeffries would have given Dempsey an interesting engagement. Jeff was a better fighter, more experienced and more experienced than the present champion.

The men he met and defeated were generally speaking far superior to those Dempsey shattered. Jeff, naturally left handed, hit with that hand. His right was not so good.

It is probable that Dempsey is more of a fighter than any of the older and more shrewd, but in a distance fight he would have been able to absorb Fitz's welter for 20 and 25 rounds. He is a hard when he met Jeffries on the 14th of June.

Dempsey vs. Johnson—which would have won? His great height, long reach and extraordinary defensive skill would have given Johnson quite an advantage.

Yet the whirlwind Dempsey might have won in an early round. Johnson was not used to being hit.

Had Jeff followed up that blow he would have made Johnson quit cold, say Tex Rickard, who promoted the battle.

You can say this for Dempsey. When he gets an opening he doesn't hesitate to walk in and hit it with destruction.

Dempsey never lets a wounded bird wing its way back to safety. He is probably the greatest natural fighter the heavyweight division has ever developed, a natural fighter with the ferocious, destructive instinct of a savage.

"GREATEST OUTFIELDER I EVER SAW"

Tris Speaker's Comment on Hap Felsch, Baseball Outcast

HAP FELSCH

BY BILLY EVANS

Hap Felsch is jailed for perjury. The wires carried that terse message the other day.

What an inglorious finish to the career of one of the greatest outfielders in the history of the game.

Four years ago Felsch was one of the outstanding figures of baseball, the honor of being chosen as the game's greatest outfielder.

At the height of his baseball career, in a position to demand a salary in the five figures, on the road to be a wealthy man as athletes go, Hap Felsch is now a baseball outcast.

From his lofty position as one of the idols of the national pastime, a heroic figure of the game, he is now down and out.

Instead of having his name almost daily feature the sport headlines, instead of drawing a big salary for six months' work, he is eking out a mere existence as the proprietor of a small grocery store in Milwaukee.

World of Ability

The glory of Felsch has been forever dimmed by his alleged part in the baseball scandal of 1919. Yet it will always remain a fact that he was one of the greatest players the game has ever produced.

to 15 pounds, Dundee at the age of 30 won the featherweight title. He became a champion at an age when a majority of fighters have retired from the ring or are in the "has-been" class.

Dundee's career is a great tribute to clean living. A believer in the theory that there is no better conditioner than real competition, he has made it a point to keep busy. Fighting is a serious business, with Dundee. Always in shape to fight he never missed up a worthwhile opportunity.

The fight game is a severe one, physically. However, failure to be properly conditioned often is the reason for a fighter taking much punishment that could otherwise be avoided. Baseball takes a lot out of the athlete, but many of the star players have done their best work between 30 and 40. Take the cases of Johnson, Cobb, Speaker, Collins and many others. True, Jack Britton is to be much commended for being able to step along with the best boys of his weight at the age of 40, his status is something of a knock to a majority of the fighters who usually pass out before they have reached the 30 mark.

THAT'S KIRKWOOD FOR YOU

Joe Kirkwood won the Texaco golf championship with the fine score of 279, finishing seven strokes ahead of his nearest competitor. The Australian, in one of his inspired moods, had two 68's. When this fellow is good, he's invincible.

HAS MANESCH A WEARINESS?

While Detroit expects big things from Outfielder Manesch this year, American League pitchers seem to think his batting can be slowed down considerably if he is properly pitched to. The consensus of the pitchers is that he doesn't like a fast ball on the inside, letter high.

"BLIND JACK" QUILTS

Jack Wolfe, the bespectacled banjoist of the Cincinnati Reds, is expected to give the boxing game the festive go-by and will devote his future waking hours to the honorable and less bruising task of selling life insurance. "I only got $200 for beating Young Montreal the other night. Is that a business for a Hebrew boy?" Wolfe demands to know.

WILL MISS BOECKEL

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves is bumping into trouble weeks before the opening of

Felsch had a world of natural ability, he lacked only the color and initiative to have made him as famous as Ty Cobb.

"Never saw his equal as an outfielder unless it is Tris Speaker, remarked the veteran Kid Gleason one day last summer as we discussed Felsch. Gleason was very fond of the big outfielder and there was just a trace of a tear in his eye as he remarked:

Ruined Many a Career

"What a shame those boys fell from grace. It ruined their careers and spoiled mine. Why, I could have won three or four more pennants with that club and perhaps as many world series."

"The scribbles would have been calling me the wonder man instead of just plain Kid Gleason."

And now listen to a remark that Tris Speaker made just after Felsch had been barred from further participation in baseball by Judge Landis:

"He's the greatest outfielder I have ever seen. Instead of a picture of Hap Felsch stalking off the ball field to the cheers of the multitude, for our last impression of that great athlete, we see a couple of policemen taking him to his cell in a jail. What a shame!"

EVANS COMING BACK

Chuck Evans, noted Chicago golfer, who suffered serious financial setbacks last year, is said to be coming back splendidly. Evans is doing double-time work as broker and writer. His golf articles are nationally distributed.

HERE'S MORE FISH, BOYS!

Apparently Lalo Dominguez, lightweight champion of Cuba, isn't such the season. In the death of Tony Roskel he loses one of the most valuable players on the team.

POOR HEALTH SPOILS PLAY

Jimmy O'Connell

The "big bust" of the 1923 season in the National League was Outfielder Jimmy O'Connell, highly touted recruit of the New York Giants.

O'Connell cost McGraw $75,000 in real money, but last year wasn't worth a cent to the New York club.

Despite his poor showing McGraw hasn't entirely lost faith in the big fellow. He is of the opinion that too much publicity was O'Connell's great handicap. Now that the press agent stuff has died down, he believes O'Connell will work natural, rather than strained, and show much better results.

Neither has O'Connell lost faith in himself. He blames his poor showing to ill health, the result of an attack of typhoid fever.

as much as a fighter. An unknown New Yorker by the name of Sid Bickard was giving the champion a hard pasting when rain broke up the fight in the eighth round.

AFTER DEMPSY'S RECORD

When Iggy Fierpo returns to this country he will take on a number of stuffed shirts as an appezizer. Fred Fulton is one of the set-ups that will be sent against him. Fierpo will try to knock Fulton out quicker than Dempsey did. Dempsey's record is 11 seconds.

$15,000 Golf Make-ins.

The average golf professional won't pull down more than $6,000 a year. But the stars of the game get much more. The average for this set is close to $15,000 a year, while the biggest of the lot, the exhibition players like Kirkwood, Hagen and Sarazen, get closer to $25,000.

Lengthen the Great.

After defaulting in the second tennis tourney at Cannes because of illness, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, noted French tennis champion, went to Nice and finished first in the singles, mixed doubles and women's doubles. All her triumphs were scored with comparative ease.

The Nut Cracker

A reformed wrestler has knocked out 24 birds in a row. A wrestler who can reform is capable of anything.

Joe Jackson is again experiencing the sensation of the home-run hitter who was called out for not touching first.

A rainstorm stopped the Fierpo-Lodge fight. As if that fight wasn't all wet to begin with.

All ball players should be taught to touch first. All ball players realize the importance of first touching the baggates.

The five biggest stars in the majors are college graduates. No handicap is too great to overcome if you go about it in the right way.

One nice thing about gymnastic rowing is that the sea never gets too choppy for the comfort of the intrepid athletes.

We used to think Frank Tinney was the funniest guy in the world, but that was before we saw Miller Huggins in knickers.

Harvard has given Bobby Jones a letter. Now if the postal agents give him a route his future will be established.

A new record for the back stroke was hung up the other day and strangely enough the Phillies had nothing to do with it.

Babe Ruth's feet swelled so badly he had to stop training. Well, anyway, his fame hasn't gone to his head.

British hovers have their backs to the wall," writes a melancholy correspondent. What he really means, of course, is to the canvas.

Officials announce all racing dates for 1924 have been fixed. The races, however, will not be fixed until later.

Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery

An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. S. McCleary, the noted rectal specialist of Kansas City. This book tells how sufferers from piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for twenty-four years and in more than eight thousand cases. The book is sent postpaid free to persons afflicted with piles or other rectal troubles who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, D542 Parkway Sanitarium, Kansas City, Mo.

DYKES SEEKS REGULAR JOB

JIMMY DYKES

The purchase of Second Baseman Max Bishop from Baltimore by Cincinnati Reds manager, Jimmy Dykes, will not be used at second by the Athletics. Bishop has been the key-stone of the pennant-winning infield of the Baltimore Orioles. Manager Jack Dunn of that team says he has been ripe for the team for several years. He has no doubt of his making good in the American League. If such is the case, Jimmy Dykes must either warm the bench or try to displace Sammy Hale at third. Dykes prefers third to second base and for a time was used at that position by Red.

POOR HEALTH SPOILS PLAY

JIMMY O'CONNELL

The "big bust" of the 1923 season in the National League was Outfielder Jimmy O'Connell, highly touted recruit of the New York Giants. O'Connell cost McGraw $75,000 in real money, but last year wasn't worth a cent to the New York club. Despite his poor showing McGraw hasn't entirely lost faith in the big fellow. He is of the opinion that too much publicity was O'Connell's great handicap. Now that the press agent stuff has died down, he believes O'Connell will work natural, rather than strained, and show much better results. Neither has O'Connell lost faith in himself. He blames his poor showing to ill health, the result of an attack of typhoid fever.

VOGEL NAMED TO LEAD FIGHT OF LA FOLLETTE

Backers, at Valley City Meeting, Decide Not to Permit His Withdrawal

OTHER POLITICAL NEWS

F. A. Vogel of Coleharbor, representative in the state legislature, was named manager of Senator Robert M. La Follette's campaign for North Dakota's vote in the Republican national convention, subject to the March 18 primary, at a meeting held at Valley City last night. Mr. Vogel, who returned from Valley City this afternoon, said that a vigorous campaign would be made.

Although a telegram from Senator Frazier and Congressman Sinclair urged withdrawal of La Follette's name, Vogel said it would not be withdrawn. Senator La Follette himself, he said, did not have power under the law to withdraw his name without the consent of the committee of petitioners which put him in nomination, although it has been the practice of the Secretary of State's office to permit a candidate to withdraw if he desires.

Vogel issued the following statement: "We are going to give La Follette the endorsement for President in North Dakota and we are going to elect a set of delegates who will stand by him and go with him wherever he goes."

"The common people of North Dakota are going to take it upon themselves to let their voices be heard on March 18th. The order of the Tea Pot Dome, the crucifixion of agriculture and the many other things that the La Follette administration is about to bring before the people, are things that are so obvious that they are almost self-evident. It is inconceivable that a farmer, a laborer or any one who makes a living by their own efforts should vote for a continuation of the present regime."

"At Valley City last night all the Progressive elements got together and definite and concise plans were laid for a vigorous campaign. It will be a campaign waged through the individual efforts of the forward looking people of this state. We have no campaign funds and we do not need the funds that reactionary governments are always used to mislead the voters. We are going to show the world that we can wage and win a fight without money."

"I have been asked to take charge of the details of this campaign, and following out the plan worked out at Valley City an immediate effort will be put forth to place the facts before the people of this state."

"Gerald Nye, John Andrews and the balance of the Progressive Press of this state through the leadership of the above two men will get into action and we plan to make things hum from now until the sun goes down on March 17th."

URGE CONN FOR PLACE

The Hettlinger County Herald of New England in the event Miss Minnie Nielson will not be a candidate again urges support of G. W. Conn. The New England paper says in part: "If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, or build a better rat trap than his neighbor, let him take it to the door. Let him build his home in the far reaches of the Bad Lands of North Dakota. 'The world will make a beaten pathway to his door.'"

When George W. Conn, one of the leading educators of the state of Illinois, moved to North Dakota and became the proprietor of the historic HT ranch, one of the best known beauty spots in the Bad Lands of North Dakota, he little realized how quickly the reputation he built in a distant state as a leader in things educational, would find him out. During the past few years he has been engaged in ranching, in real estate and in banking, but his heart is still in the educational work for which he is so eminently fitted. Even in the press of business he has found time to take part in institute work, to give addresses and to aid school work in county and state. He played an important part in carrying on patriotic organization work during the World War. Ability such as his cannot be hidden, during the past few years numerous opportunities have been presented for him to get back into the work he loves so well.

Now comes the demand from many quarters of the state that G. W. Conn of Amidon become a candidate for the office of state superintendent of public instruction. In fact, Mr. Conn was urged to become a candidate for this office two years ago. At that time he would not consider the proposition. Now his friends hope to be able to induce him to make the race.

BAKER CONFERS

B. F. Baker of Glenburn, N. D., Nonpartisan league candidate for commissioner of agriculture and labor, was in Grand Forks Tuesday conferring with Ole Knutson, newly elected chairman of the league state executive committee, and other league leaders.

"I think that the progressive forces in the state have a very good chance to win at the coming election," Mr. Baker declared, "and while there is very little being done relative to political matters at the present time, things will begin to liven up after the presidential primaries. We have made no definite plans relative to the campaign as yet, but will, of course, in due time."

AGED 80, HE'LL SAIL THE PACIFIC IN 40-FOOT BOAT

CAPTAIN AND MRS. R. W. NYE (UPPER LEFT) WILL SAIL OUT OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY IN A 40-FOOT BOAT FOR THE SOUTH SEAS. JOHN J. SJORSTROM (UPPER RIGHT) IS THE THIRD MEMBER OF THEIR PARTY. THE HULL (LOWER) HAS BEEN COMPLETED AND SJORSTROM IS NOW WORKING ON THE CABIN.

By NEA Service
San Francisco, Calif., Feb. 26.—Eighty years old, Captain R. W. Nye soon will be sailing to the South Seas in a 40-foot schooner.

He has made and lost three fortunes, and this trip is planned with the hope of gaining the fourth. Crew for the 55-day trip to the Galapagos Islands will be Nye, his wife and John J. Sjoström.

The Galapagos Islands are seldom visited, but are rich in pearls. "A small boat and plenty of canvas, that's the way we'll go," explains Captain Nye. "We want plenty of thrills, as well as plenty of pearls."

"BOYISH SIMPLICITY" LONDON'S DECREE FOR WOMEN'S FASHIONS

London, Feb. 27.—Boyish simplicity will be the predominant note in women's styles for 1924, the English fashion makers and dress-makers have decreed. Short, semi-fitting gowns falling straight down the figure in bold, streamlike effects will be worn with turned-down white collars and turn-back cuffs.

The natural contour of the body, both front and back, will be subordinated in order to achieve youthful, boyish straightness and angularity. The women will be practically without any waists and where any attempt is made to achieve one it will be at the top of the hips.

A further touch of masculinity will be imparted by the adoption of bobbed hair for single women while married ones will wear their hair well plastered down on the head. Frocks will be a few inches shorter but there will be no return to the "just below the knee skirt." Small hats will be the rule although with higher crowns. Ribbons and embroideries will be the accepted trimmings.

RIOTS COME AFTER STRIKE

Police in Chicago Get Many Calls Today

Chicago, Feb. 27.—A strike of union dressmakers called by the International Ladies Garment Workers today started out with a half dozen riot calls and reports of several acts of violence.

According to police reports a manufacturer was attacked and a number of non-union workers were slugged by riotous gatherings of strikers. The report said some of the strikers attempted to wreck the dress-making shops and that damage was caused.

The first definite report to the police stated that two men had been stabbed, two others seriously hurt and 14 strikers arrested. A crowd of working girls were reported to have taken refuge on a fire escape and were rescued by policemen with drawn revolvers who charged the strikers.

TAXES MUST BE PAID SOON

All personal property, special assessment and one-half of the real estate taxes will become delinquent on March 1, next Friday, February 29 being the last day on which payments may be made to escape the penalties that will be added subsequently. County Treasurer Alfred Mostad announced today.

In event personal property taxes are not paid before March 1 a penalty of 5 per cent immediately becomes effective and 1 per cent is added for each subsequent month. On special

CONVICT GIRL, 19, OF MURDER

Chicago Jury Finds Katherine Malm Guilty

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Katherine Malm, 19, was found guilty last night of the murder of Edward Lehman, a watchman, during a robbery, by a jury which fixed her punishment at life imprisonment. The jury returned its verdict after deliberating an hour and a half. The state had demanded the death penalty and had required each juror to state that he had no scruples about hanging a woman if he believed her guilty of murder.

When the verdict was read last night, she screamed and collapsed. Jurors said three ballots were taken and that her guilt was decided on the first ballot, the other two being taken to fix the punishment.

Lehman and Albert Stenwedel were shot when they came upon a man and woman companion trying to enter a knit goods factory. On the strength of Lehman's dying statement, the police arrested Walter Bockelman and Ethel Beck, his youthful sweetheart. Stenwedel identified Bockelman as Lehman's slayer and the Beck girl confessed she and Bockelman had committed the crime.

RAIL PROBLEMS TOLD ROTARY BY WOODWORTH

most of it was burned in the towns and very largely consumed by power plants. He further stated that approximately half of the Northern Pacific tonnage went to six large towns and that investigation would show that the real farmers do not pay 5 percent of the charges on lignite coal. The farmer is much more interested in the rates on grain, livestock and other farm products.

Under present conditions those rates cannot be reduced, on the contrary it may be necessary to raise them unless there can be some readjustment which will increase the revenue which comes from the carrying of other commodities. Mr. Woodworth admitted the necessity for low rates to distant points where lignite comes in competition with coal from other sources of supply but agreed that there was no necessity for the present abnormally low rates for the short hauls here in North Dakota and said they have the effect of placing undue burdens on other traffic. He urged the members of the Rotary Club to make their own independent study of these questions without being too much influenced by what is said by those engaged in the business, not excepting the railroads, and expressed his confidence in the ultimate good judgment and fairness of the people.

Enthusiastic Reception
Mr. Woodworth was given an enthusiastic reception by the local Rotarians. He expressed himself as impressed with the wonderful strides in this section of the state. He came as a young man to South Dakota in 1880 where he worked as a station agent. Mr. Woodworth rose from the ranks and is an example of the railroad man who rose from office boy in 1879 to accept in command of a great transcontinental railroad. His promotion has been made without the handicaps of the seniority rule in railroad promotion which has had the effect of curbing initiative and making less attractive railroad service as a life work.

J. J. MacLeod gave a complete report of the boys work in Bismarck which is nearing the end of a three year period. His work was given a complete endorsement by Rotarians and the report will be printed in full in an early issue of The Tribune.

The title of his report was around the calendar with the Bismarck boys. Hank Holverson did the birthday honor for Lewis Crawford and indulged in some original verse set to the tune of "Kelly."

Burt Finney urged the support of the boys work as part of the Rotary job intimating that the decisions definitely on its future scope must be made in the near future.

J. C. Simpson, vice president of the club, presided in the absence of Henry Duemeland. A. J. Arnot of the February committee conducted the program.

Guests of honor were: D. E. Miller, assistant manager of the Fargo Ford branch; W. H. Corbett, Bismarck; T. S. Clemow, Billings; O. W. Tong, Minneapolis; Fred Sheffield, Fargo; Stanley B. Houck, Minneapolis; J. G. Morrison, St. Paul; Edgar Weston, Livingston; D. F. Lyons, St. Paul; H. H. Einsworth, St. Paul; Roy Baird, Dickinson; W. A. McDonald, Bismarck.

PETITIONS FOR PERRY FILED

No Constitutional Amendment to be Voted on June 25

Petitions placing H. H. Perry of Ellendale in nomination for Democratic national convention and the "Wedge" ticket of candidates for delegates to the Democratic national convention and presidential electors have been accepted by the Secretary of State. They were filed late yesterday by H. L. Halverson and Wm. O'Leary of Minot and W. E. Black of Fargo. The petitions for Perry bore 1,132 signatures and 750 names for the "Wedge" ticket.

Petitions for such candidates in the March 18 primary must be filed by March 1.

There will be no constitutional amendment on the election ballot in the June 25 primary. Neither the proposed good roads program nor the Langer bank bond measures will be voted on. The time for filing petitions for a vote on constitutional amendments expired at 5 o'clock last evening with no petitions filed.

It was necessary to have 20,000 signatures to petitions to gain a popular vote on proposed constitutional amendments. According to information received here, the good roads program petitions lacked about 2,000 signatures.

CLAIM M'ADOO GOT BIG FEE

Represented Steel Company in Tax Refund Case

Youngstown, O., Feb. 27.—William C. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury in the Wilson administration, received a fee of $200,000 for the intervention in a tax refund case of the Republic Iron and Steel Company in 1920, according to a copyrighted special story published by the Youngstown Vindicator.

According to the story Mr. McAdoo was engaged by Chairman John A. Topping of the Republic just before the case came to a hearing and effected a compromise with William M. Williams, then commissioner of internal revenue, and members of the tax revision board. Due to this compromise, it is said, the Republic

LUMBER PRICE IS FAVORABLE

Early Buying For Spring Declared Builder's Best Bet

Fargo, Feb. 27.—Lumbermen who gathered in Fargo today from all parts of North Dakota to attend the 17th annual convention of the North Dakota Lumbermen's association are convinced that prices of building materials, especially lumber will not go lower this year but if anything will take an upward trend.

This thought was emphatically expressed by many of the lumbermen who gathered at the Fargo Commercial club during the forenoon for registration. At noon approximately 100 lumbermen had registered and in addition there were about 50 salesmen, representing wholesale concerns. It is expected that the registration will pass the 200 mark before final adjournment.

ISSUE BOOKLET ON NO. DAKOTA

"North Dakota's Opportunities and Tourists Guide" is the title of a booklet now being compiled by the North Dakota Automobile association for distribution to tourists throughout the eastern states, according to announcement by C. E. Danielson of Minot, president of the association, who was in Bismarck yesterday.

The booklet will contain a general review of the state and a write up of each county Mr. Danielson said. The various industries of the state will be stressed and the many points of interest in the state to tourists will be mentioned. Letters have been sent out to each county requesting photographs and descriptive matter, farm scenes or scenic beauty spots, or any information which will show the opportunities offered by North Dakota to the land seeker as well as other lines of business. The guide will outline in detail all highways, tourists rest camps, natural scenery, agricultural and other opportunities, Mr. Danielson said.
